BUS LINE RIVAL OF STREET CAR, HANNA ADMITS

Stand of Commission Is Backed by Conceding Competition.

EFFECTS OF AUTOS ON REVENUE TRACED

Traction Head Sees but Two Ways to Gain More Earnings.

HIGHER FARES STILL HELD BEST REMEDY

One-Man Vehicles Call for New Equipment, Says Railway Chief.

John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Street Car Co., yesterday indirectly strengthened the position of the Public Utilities Commission in its decision to make the Washington Rapid Transit Bus Co. a party to the car fare case now pending before the commission.

The bus company, Hanna said in the course of his testimony at the public hearing conducted by the utilities commission in the District Building, was a "direct competitor" of the street car company.

Hanna's statement, however, was not intended to give approval to the action of the commission in making the bus company a party to the present fare increase case.

Objections are Overruled.

When the hearings were resumed yesterday morning attorneys for both the Capital Traction and the Washington Railway & Electric companies formally recorded their objections to the commission order including the bus company in the proceedings. These objections were overruled and the hearings proceeded.

Hanna's statement about the effect of the competition of the bus company on the number of passengers and, consequently, on the revenues of his company, was made later in the day in the course of questions propounded to him by Ralph B. Fitch, people's counsel; William McK. Clayton, utilities leader of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and others, including J. C. Young, of the Iowa-Thomas Circle Citizens Association, which is not affiliated with the federation, and E. C. Riegler, of the Consumers' Union.

The cross-examination was not a battle of sharp repartees but often seemed to take on a discussion between intimates of a problem and its solution in which all were equally interested.

Company's Efforts Praised.

The Capital Traction head admitted that possibly there were many places here and there in his company where it could be better managed, where economies might be effected, where better service might be developed, but, nonetheless, from the mountain top of his knowledge and experience he saw his company as a well-managed one, anxious to give the people of the city the best possible service, trying hard to solve all of the complex problems confronting it and doing the job much better than are the street car companies of other comparable cities.

He deprecated the unification part of the proceedings with much the same statements he had made before a complete merger of the transportation companies was one thing, but inasmuch as that was not possible at present, discussion of the advantages to be gained through "unification" of operations must be in general terms because the unification discussed was not a concrete proposal, he held.

Two Doors to Revenue.

There are only two ways of giving the Capital Traction Co. the rate of return to which it is entitled on its valuation, Hanna said. One was increase in revenues and the other was reduction in operating expenses.

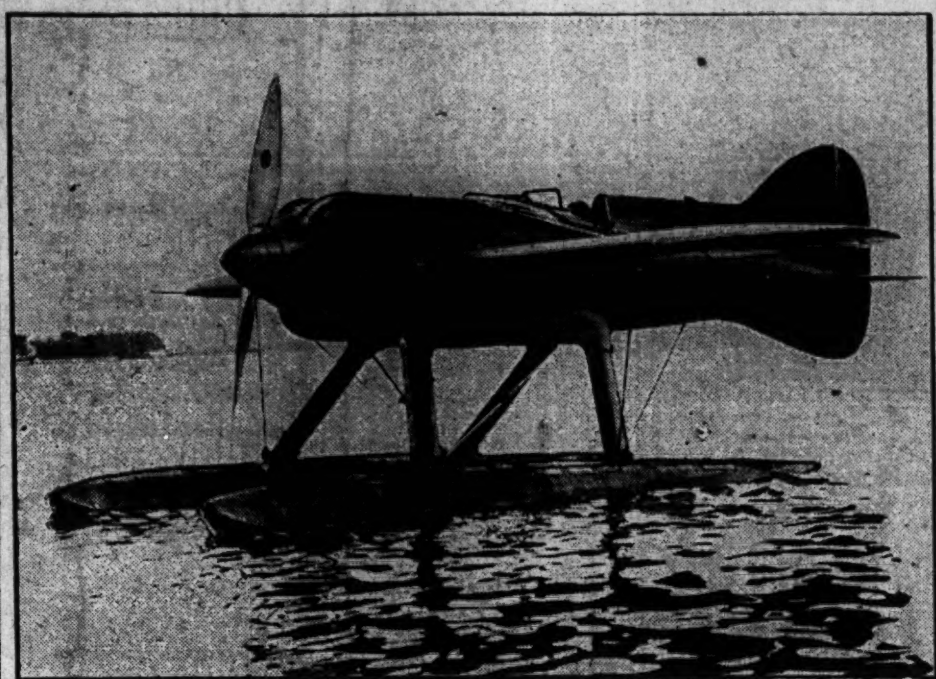

"There might be minor economies possible in other branches but the major problem is the cost of labor," he declared. "You can't reduce the cost of labor by reducing wages and, if that is so, then you must reduce it, if at all, by reducing the number of persons employed."

One-man street cars, he said, afforded the greatest opportunity to do this, but he hastened to add that "I am not here advocating one-man cars."

The Capital Traction Co. tries to furnish the people of Washington with the kind of service they want and they seem to want the two-man street car and, as far as we are concerned, they will continue to have it," Hanna said. He explained that the decline in the service afforded the riding public was responsible for the steady decline in the number of passengers carried, reiterating that the higher fare asked for would not be responsible for a serious falling off in passenger revenue.

"Then," Fitcharty asked, "if this decline continues indefinitely a fare increase is inevitable?"

Racing Airplane Near Disaster; Wind and Waves Prevent Tests

Airplane speed records may be shattered in this tiny middle-wing monoplane Mercury racer to be piloted by Lieut. Al Williams, famous Navy seaplane speed titleholder, against British, French and Italian craft in September at Cowes, Isle of Wight, England, if it proves worthy in tests. It has a wing spread of 20 1/2 feet and weighs 4,400 pounds, being powered with a 24-cylinder motor.

CANNON WILL HELP MITCHELL IF ASKED

Tenders Attorney General Access to Any Loan Data Desired.

TAKES SLAP AT TINKHAM

(Associated Press.) Bishop James Cannon, Jr., announced in a statement yesterday that he had written to Attorney General Mitchell offering access to any information desired by the latter, concerning the operations of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the bishop's personal activities in the 1928 presidential campaign.

The statement, made in response to a letter from Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, to the Attorney General, requesting an investigation of the bishop and the board, declared:

"Tinkham's attack upon me is simply one of his periodical attacks upon the South, prohibition and Methodism to convince his wet Roman Catholic Boston constituency that he should be retained as their representative in Congress, which many of them seemed seriously to doubt in the last election."

Replying to a challenge by the representative that he will tell the source of money loaned the Virginia anti-Smith Democrats, Bishop Cannon said his previous statement on the subject "is clear and explicit."

"It declares," the bishop said, "that all loans were made by James Cannon, Jr., personally. Mr. Tinkham wants to know from what source did (Bishop Cannon) obtain the large sums which between August and November he loaned to the anti-Smith Democratic committee. He insinuates that it was his own money, but he dare not say so."

"The churchman's statement added, 'He stated the exact facts.'"

Mechanics Leap Into Bay to Save Proposed U. S. Cup Contestant.

Lieut. Williams, Hopeful, Says Its Speed May Be Gauged Today.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 8.—Disaster nearly befalling the Mercury racing seaplane, proposed as the United States entry in the Schneider Cup regatta, to take place off the Isle of Wight, England, early in September, when the "mystery" craft was lowered from the Santee dock into the waters of the Severn River late this afternoon, presumably to be put through the first of the preliminary tests, and also to permit a battery of camera men from various newspapers and news agencies to take additional pictures.

Lieut. Alfred J. Williams, speed ace, who hopes the craft, will develop a speed greatly in excess of 300 miles an hour, and thereby smash the record established by Italy last year, was not aboard the racer at the time of the near-disaster.

It all happened as the craft, which, though tiny, weighs 4,000 pounds, took the water. Two mechanics, who, with Williams, had been tinkering with a newly devised engine cooling system, in which the pontoons carry both oil and water, remained on the ship, as a derrick lifted her from the dock to the river. One of the pontoons began to become submerged under the additional weight, as the racer is a one-man ship. The wing listed badly.

Lieut. Williams, who was standing on the dock nearby, called to the mechanics to jump overboard, which they did. The craft then righted itself. Everything thereafter was all right with the exception that a cow slipped from an oil connection while the oil was being drawn from a poutoon.

Weather conditions, however, were anything but propitious for Williams to attempt an official test and the craft was derricked to the pier and placed under close guard for the night. It was a drag day, the skies being heavily overcast, for the most part, visibility being rather poor because of the rain.

VIRGINIA CAMPAIGN BEGINS IN EARNEST

Regular Democratic Heads Confer With Chairman; See Solid Front.

POLLARD'S LEAD GROWS

Richmond, Va., Aug. 8 (A.P.).—The Virginia gubernatorial campaign that will determine whether last fall's Republican victory, the first since "reconstruction," was a mere flash in the pan or a permanent split in the Democratic organization, was under way in earnest tonight.

Democratic leaders from many sections of Virginia visited Richmond today to confer with J. Murray Hooker, Democratic State chairman, and a conference was held late today to make preliminary plans for the three months before the general election. Conference was to be found everywhere among Democrats, the leaders holding the overwhelming vote for John Garland Pollard for governor in Tuesday's primary to mean "a solid Democratic front in November, and an endorsement of the Byrd administration."

Dr. Pollard, the nominee, was taking a week's rest, but Dr. William Mosley Brown, anti-Smith and Republican nominee, continued the speaking campaign begun before the primary. Dr. Brown was at Accomac, home of G. Walter Mapp, unsuccessful candidate for an address tonight.

Nothing could be gained through comparison of statements issued by rival forces in commenting on the vote in the Democratic primary. Chairman Hooker, Senator Swanson, Gov. Byrd and other Democratic chiefs, denied the Pollard vote was above expectations and predicted a Democratic victory by a substantial majority in November. From the opposition camp, Frank Lyon, anti-Smith chairman, declared the primary vote presaged a Democratic defeat, and R. H. Angell, Republican chairman, called attention to the fact that the primary vote did not exceed the total given Alfred E. Smith last November.

"Truthfully speaking, Chairman Angell said, 'the primary result is in the fact that the gubernatorial candidates' maximum strength, including those drawn into the primary by sharp local fights, only brought out a combined vote about equal to the vote received by Al Smith last November. Should the Democratic nominee receive the support of every voter who participated in the primary, and there will be some stay-aways, he would then be 20,000 short of the vote necessary to elect."

Angell said the final high points in the campaign would necessarily hinge on vital State issues with a very significant national bearing because of "the firm belief on the part of the masses of people of last November's contest will have to be repeated in 1932, and they must keep in training for the bout."

"The primary vote showed that Virginians are interested in the Democratic party and indicated that the Democratic ticket will carry the State by a substantial majority," Chairman Hooker said from the Democratic headquarters, which was established within less than 24 hours after the polls closed for the primary. Hooker said the primary vote was larger than expected by Democrats in view of the mild primary campaign, and he attributed the interest to Democratic strength.

Dr. Pollard's plurality gradually increased as the isolated rural precincts reported today and when 1,566 of the State's 1,881 precincts had reported, he had amassed a vote of 104,771 last November.

CHINA-RUSSIAN LEADERS FAIL OF AGREEMENT

Soviet Resumes Airplane Demonstrations Over Siberian Border.

U. S. OFFICIALS SEE HOSTILITIES REMOTE

Conference at Manchuli Between Only Minor Envoys, Belief.

UNOFFICIAL CLASH ON BORDER FEARED

Chinese Minister Informs State Department of Late Advises.

Tokyo, Aug. 8 (A.P.).—Japanese dispatches from Manchuli, Manchuria, where representatives of Russia and China have been discussing the situation arising from Chinese seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway, reported this afternoon that the negotiations had broken down.

The Chinese delegates announced that they were leaving Manchuli for Nanking tomorrow.

Another Japanese dispatch from Harbin said revival of the tension between Russia and China had marked the resumption of Russian aerial demonstrations over Pogranichny and Manchuli.

Russian Airplanes Busy.

A message from Pogranichny this morning said 38 Russian airplanes had maneuvered over the town today. Manchuli reported that in addition to airplanes a force of Russian armored cars had maneuvered close to the border.

(Associated Press.)

Chinese Minister Wu called at the State Department late yesterday and conferred for nearly a half hour on the Chinese-Russian situation with Assistant Secretary Nelson T. Johnson, in charge of Far Eastern affairs.

While neither the minister nor the Assistant Secretary would disclose the subject of their discussions, Mr. Wu said he was fully informing the department about the advice he has been receiving from his government. The minister, however, declared he had not been advised of the reported withdrawal of the Chinese officials from the efforts at Manchuli to negotiate the Chinese Eastern Railway situation with the Soviet representatives.

Say Hostilities Are Remote.

On the part of American Government officials, however, there was no inclination to view seriously the reports of the withdrawal of the Chinese from the negotiations. The threats of hostilities between China and the Soviet over the Chinese Eastern Railway are believed by well-informed official circles here to be as remote as they were before the opening of the negotiations.

The conferences are understood by the American officials so far taken have been between minor representatives of the two nations and are not expected to be conclusive. While the latest reports indicate a deadlock in the negotiations, official circles here believe the Chinese representatives may be returning to Peking for further instructions.

The only danger in the present status of the situation, American officials feel, is the possibility of minor border clashes in the event that the troops of one or the other country might get out of control of their superior officers. But such clashes, it was believed here, would not result in serious hostilities.

"Scarface Al" Is Moved To State Penitentiary

Philadelphia, Aug. 8 (A.P.).—Alphonse "Scarface Al" Capone, Chicago gangland leader, under sentence of one year for carrying a loaded pistol in Philadelphia, was today transferred from the county prison, in the northeastern section of Philadelphia, to the Eastern State Penitentiary, a veritable fortress, nearer the center of the city.

The official reason for the transfer was not publicly announced, but it was reported that threats against the underworld leader by fellow prisoners caused the county prison authorities to have him removed to "Cherry Hill," as the penitentiary is locally known.

Floods Drown Many In Southern Manchuria

Tokyo, Aug. 8 (A.P.).—Rengo News dispatches from Mukden, Manchuria, today said that floods, following heavy rainfall, have caused many deaths and widespread destruction in southern Manchuria.

ZEPPELIN ENCOUNTERS HEAVY WINDS WITH FOG AND RAIN LYING AHEAD

Reserve Board Aims Blow at Speculation

Drastic Increase in Bank Rediscount Rate to 6 Per Cent Amazes Wall Street—Repeated Warnings Believed Unheeded.

New York, Aug. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Announcement of an increase in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York from 5 per cent to 6 per cent transcended all other financial developments today. In the light of this wholly unexpected action the day's discriminating advance in the stock market was of little interest, and the retention of a 5 1/2 per cent rate by the Bank of England appears to lose significance.

To say that Wall Street was caught by surprise in so aggressive an extension of the Reserve Board's restrictive program is to put it mildly. Since the board first issued a definite warning regarding the stock market's utilization of excessive amounts of credit last February the speculative community had gradually lost almost all fear of drastic official discipline.

It derived some reassurance from the known difference of opinion existing among members of the board as to the necessity or wisdom of a rate increase. It relied upon the patience exhibited by the board in limiting its definite action to open market money operations designed to reduce outstanding Federal Reserve credit.

Following the market's reaction in May and the resulting large decline in brokers' loans, it accepted unofficial Washington reports that the board was satisfied with the credit change effected since the issuance of its warning. The subsequent notable speculation for the rise, however, justified by industrial prosperity, had the inevitable effect of carrying brokers' loans once more to an unprecedented high level, producing renewed credit stringency at the very period when the fall commercial demand for credit begins to make itself felt.

The financial district bolstered its courage by arguing that the mounting total of "speculative borrowings" was chiefly the result of new financing, an explanation partly accurate. It believed, furthermore, that the logical time for a rate increase had passed. If, because of fear of unsettling business effects, the board had shown itself strongly averse to rate increases, it would have been expected to have done so long ago.

Under an agreement reached between Republican and Democratic chiefs, the Senate, scheduled to reconvene August 19, will meet and recess over three-day periods until September 3 when the Republican members of the finance committee will have the House tariff bill in shape for floor discussions.

While Republican leaders have been hopeful that the measure could be made ready by the earlier date, they reached the definite conclusion yesterday that this was impossible and immediately arranged the three-day recess plan with the Democrats. The meeting days will be Mondays and Thursdays.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the majority leader and member of the finance committee, who made the recess announcement, said the committee would have completed by August 19 the revision of the rate and free list schedules of the House bill, but that the additional time was required to consider changes in the administrative provisions.

Upon conclusion of the rate and free list schedule revision, the majority had a permit to carry a gun for more than 15 years and that in that time he had never had occasion to use the weapon. Under regulations now in effect a person who obtains a permit to carry a gun must make an affidavit that he believes their life is in danger and are issued a permit good for one month. Bond of $500 must be furnished. The permit and the bond must be renewed every 40 days, and each time three reputable citizens must vouch for the good character of the person requesting the permit.

Investigation of the permits followed discovery Wednesday that at least one of the leaders of the rival gangs—the On Leong and the Hip Sing—went to United States Attorney Rover's office with a pistol in his pocket. The weapon was taken from him in the District Supreme Court building just before the United States Attorney was to appear in court on a long-remembered case.

He stated, however, that his knowledge of the Chinese law was not sufficient to enable him to carry a gun.

Craft, 1,725 Miles East of New York, Roars On Through Night.

SPEED IS INCREASED; BIG SHIP FLIES LOW

French Vessel Sights Her Barely 1,000 Feet Above Waves.

HAMBURG PREDICTS SQUALLY WEATHER

Low Center Must Be Pushed Through for Driftable to Reach Home.

New York, Aug. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Headed directly East from Fire Island on a course that will take her far South of the Grand Banks, the Graf Zeppelin was showing along at a speed of about 70 miles an hour when last reported at 11 p. m., 1,725 miles East of New York.

The ship was flying low through heavy winds, barely 1,000 feet above the waves, according to the report of the French steamship Rochambeau, which spoke to her and reported her position to her owners in New York.

The Zeppelin has been in almost constant communication with the shore. The Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co. reported from its station at Sayville that the Graf's signals were coming in strong and clear.

Speed is Increased.

For the first twelve hours after leaving Loharst the ship maintained an average speed of 45 miles an hour, which, if maintained, would take her around the world in seventeen days, but as she sped farther out over the ocean her commander ordered on more speed and she was doing 67 knots when reported at 4 p. m.

The message from the Rochambeau said: "Sighted Zeppelin 420 miles East of Sandy Hook at 12:34 o'clock Greenwich time (7:34 Eastern standard time). Fine and clear weather. The Rochambeau will reach New York Saturday."

The President Roosevelt, of the United States Lines, due here Saturday, wired the line office this morning she had sighted the dirigible.

Dr. James H. Kimball, weather bureau meteorologist, said late today that the Zeppelin had experienced all the good weather it would have for several hours and is due to encounter fog and rain for the rest of the night.

All Well on Board.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Aug. 8 (A.P.).—The Graf Zeppelin radioed to her home port here that at noon (7 a. m. Eastern standard time) her position was 438 north and 65.48 west. All well on board. The dirigible was making about 62 miles an hour.

Hamburg, Germany, Aug. 8 (A.P.).—The meteorological station reported tonight that the Graf Zeppelin on the first lap of its transatlantic flight would encounter westerly to northwesterly winds, with occasional rain squalls. The airship would have to push through an extensive low center with a reported barometer reading of 29.53.

(Associated Press.)

Favorable winds that would add 20 or 25 miles an hour to the speed of the Graf Zeppelin during the next twelve hours of her journey across the Atlantic, were forecast last night by the Weather Bureau.

The forecast, issued at 9:30 p. m., Eastern standard time, follows: "Relatively low pressure north of Belle Isle with high pressure south of Nova Scotia will cause fresh west winds and mostly fair weather for the Graf Zeppelin in the next twelve hours at least. Such conditions should and 30 or 25 miles per hour to her normal speed.

London (Friday), Aug. 9 (A.P.).—The steamship Benrinnes radioed the Associated Press this morning that at 3:30 p. m. Greenwich mean time Thursday (3:30 p. m. Eastern standard time), the Graf Zeppelin flew above it at low altitude. The ship was in north latitude 40 degrees 5 minutes, west longitude 54 degrees 53 minutes. This position was about 900 miles east of New York.

The British steamship Benrinnes is bound for Belfast and Gibraltar from Norfolk.

Passengers Are Happy.

In the words of one of the 22 passengers, William Weber, of New York, expressed in a wireless dispatch to his wife, the passengers were enjoying the happiest moments of their lives aboard the Zeppelin as it soared toward the west.

The Graf left Lakehurst at 11:40 o'clock, Eastern standard time, Wednesday night, heading seaward for her first scheduled stop at Friedrichshafen, Germany.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the ocean dirigible, expected to be in Friedrichshafen by Sunday, his sixty-first birthday anniversary. After refueling there the course lies over Sicily to Tokyo, across the Pacific to Los Angeles, and so back to Lakehurst and completion of the first dirigible flight around the world.

Philadelphia, Aug. 8 (A.P.).—The Reading Co., which operates a high frequency radio set on its terminal here, late today gave out that it had intercepted at 4:13 p. m. Eastern standard time, a message "from the Graf Zeppelin." It read:

"Encountering heavy fog blanket. Speed approximately 50 miles per hour. Position, 54.10 west, 39.40 north."

San Harbor, Me., Aug. 8 (A.P.).—The naval radio station here received the following message from the Graf Zeppelin this afternoon: "We are 700 miles east of New York. Beautiful weather. Speed 70. (2:38 p. m. E. S. T.)"

(Associated Press.)

The Navy Department intercepted a message from the Graf Zeppelin at 4:13 p. m. (Eastern standard time), reporting its position as 41 degrees and 55 degrees west, 1,025 miles east of New York City.

Consul Advocates Interest in China

Tells Danville Rotarians Opportunities for Export Are Important.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Aug. 8.—American people are not giving China the thought they should, J. Hall Paxton, United States Consul at Nanking, stated in an address before the Danville Rotary Club. He painted China as a great and as yet only partially developed market for American goods, with exports from the United States tripled in three years.

"I'd more Americans," he said, "would demand information, foreign news would get first page news valuation instead of being buried on an inside page."

Paxton, who is visiting his home town on furlough, gave a graphic description of the escape of Americans from the plant of an American oil corporation to warships on March 24, 1927.

Fairmont Man, Age 102, Walks Mile; Does Jig

Fairmont, W. Va., Aug. 8 (A.P.).—John Skinner today celebrated his 102nd birthday by walking a mile from his home to a downtown club, where he turned in a lively jig and performed his daily dance with a 160-pound blacksmith anvil.

Skinner, who is Marion County's oldest resident, then hurried home to a few odd chores about the house, as he was anxious to work up an appetite for a birthday dinner.

BOY AVERS SHERIFF FLOGGED HIM TWICE

Gov. Graves Orders Inquiry Into Alleged Whippings in Alabama Jail.

WOMAN MAKES CHARGE

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 8 (A.P.).—A grand jury investigation has been requested by Gov. Bibb Graves, of charges by William Nutter, 19-year-old convict, that he has been twice flogged since his incarceration in the Elmore County Jail at Wetumpka, 14 miles from here, several months ago.

Gov. Graves requested the grand jury investigation in a letter to County Solicitor Winston Huddleston, at the instance of Miss Ann R. Davis, deputy State prison inspector, who was understood to have received a report of the attacks from Nutter while on a recent inspection trip to the prison.

Nutter, Miss Davis reported to the governor, asserted he was brutally beaten on June 1 by Sheriff W. O. Holdbrooks for an infraction of the jail rules, and again on July 15, when he attempted to escape. The prisoner charged Deputy Sheriff A. W. Varner with aiding in the last whipping he received.

Solicitor Huddleston today said he had not received the governor's request, adding that there would be no delay in having the grand jury investigate the charges when it convenes next month.

Holdbrooks was away from his office today. Varner declared over the telephone that he had not heard of Nutter's charges. He denied that section of Miss Davis' report which declared she had caused Nutter's removal from a section of the jail segregated for negro prisoners.

Flogging of Alabama prisoners is permitted only in exceptional instances, and then after the prison physician has examined and declared the prisoner about to be whipped physically fit. An attempt to escape is punishable by whipping.

Nutter was being held in the Elmore County Jail on a charge of stealing an automobile. He is alleged to have used the car in an attempt to escape from the State prison at Montgomery where he was serving time for felony.

Goat, Gift to Stinson, To Leave Texas Today

San Angelo, Tex., Aug. 8 (A.P.).—"Billie the Kid," one of Texas' 3,000,000 Angora goats, leaves here today for Washington, where he will become the pet of Secretary of State H. L. Stinson.

The goat, named after one of the Southwest's most notorious bad men, will replace "Captain Bones," Stinson's pet goat, which was lost when the Secretary moved to Washington from the Philippines. "Billie the Kid," is a gift to the Secretary from the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association.

It was raised 65 miles from the nearest railroad on the ranch of G. W. Stephenson, 75-year-old stockman.

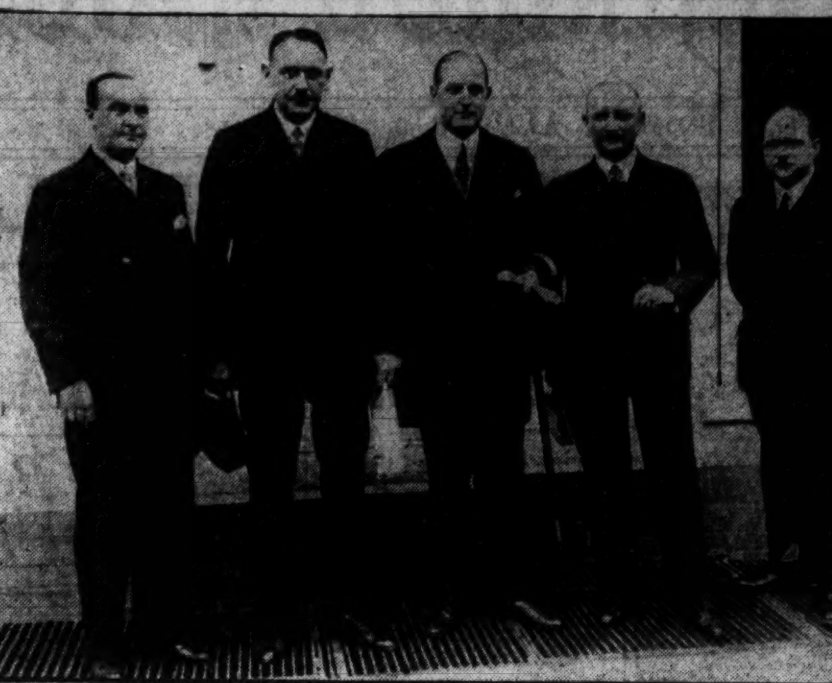

Maryland Woman Dies At Same Hour as Mate

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 8.—Mrs. Frances Adams died today on the twentieth anniversary of the death of her husband, Thomas P. Adams, passing away at the same hour. She was 88 years old, and for 65 years a resident of Keizer, which was lost when the Secretary moved to Washington from the Philippines. "Billie the Kid," is a gift to the Secretary from the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association.

Thirteen grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren also survive.

RADIO EXPERTS PAY RESPECTS TO HOOVER

German radio commissioners on an inspection tour of United States broadcasting stations, photographed yesterday at the White House just after they had paid their respects to President Hoover. GERMANS PLANNING RADIO INTERCHANGE Experiments Are Scheduled to Begin Middle of This Month.

POPULARITY IS DUBIOUS

(Associated Press.)

Experiments to interchange radio programs between Germany and the United States will be commenced during the middle of this month, but German sponsors of the plan are somewhat dubious as to whether a mixture of America's jazz and German "lectures" will please the listeners of the two nations.

Dr. Kurt Magnus, spokesman for a group of four German radio officials here to make arrangements for the experiment, yesterday announced the plan.

Declaring that German programs in the United States and American programs in Germany would be "interesting for both countries," he said: "But I understand that in America people do not like especially the lecture. And we in Germany allow no jazz on our radio until after 10 o'clock at night."

The first German radio broadcast may be expected from Germany's master station, Koelnfunkhaus, sponsored by Reichfunkgesellschaft, an incorporation of all German broadcasting stations, of which Dr. Magnus is director.

Other officials in the group were Willy Steinkopf, Reichsfunkminister, Hans Bodenstedt, director of the North German Broadcasting Co., and Friedrich Blonck, chairman of the board of that same company. A group called on President Hoover and on the Federal Radio Commission.

Accused Man Quits Government Post

F. D. K. Le Clercq, Arraigned on Girls' Charges, Resigns U. S. Service.

The State Department yesterday accepted the resignation of Frederick Dagonet Kellogg Le Clercq, second secretary of embassy in the Foreign Service, who was arraigned in Police Court yesterday morning on charges of annoying Western High School girls.

Le Clercq pleaded not guilty to two charges of assault and demanded a trial by jury. His bond was set at $500 in cash.

Judge Robert E. Mattingly consented to continue the hearing on the charges until September 1. Le Clercq's attorney was out of the city. Eleven girls appeared in court, but were not required to testify.

William, who has been besieged by scribes and photographers since the craft was brought to Annapolis late Tuesday night, consented to talk and the warden of the station ship Reina Mercedes was placed at his disposal for the purpose. Nearly a score were present, also several naval officers who have been passing the summer here instructing midshipmen of the second class in the ground work of aviation.

Williams let it be known from the outset that he knew little about the feel of the plane except that it was built after specially designed plans, in which he had a part, and had not undergone any tests on or above the water. He expressed satisfaction with the way the craft sat on the water early today when he looked at it. Otherwise, he said, everything was a matter of expectancy or calculation. He characterized as propaganda, reports to the effect that the powerful engine in the craft will develop a speed of approximately 400 miles an hour.

"Don't Know What It Will Do," the intrepid flier said, "but my hope is that it will make well above 300, as such a speed must be attained, in view of the 318-mile record established last year."

Williams explained that the preliminary test of his ship will consist entirely of taxiing along the water and its power to take off. With this determined, he said, the speed and altitude experiments will be attempted.

The preliminary demonstrations probably will be made along the Severn River near the naval reservation, but the speed tests will be made along the shores of Kent Island, on the eastern side of Chesapeake Bay. These will be over a measured course of three kilometers straight away.

The Eastern Shore offers a more isolated section for the experiment, and water conditions there also are better.

Williams Believed Optimistic.

Asked when he expected to start for Europe, Williams replied that it depended entirely upon results. If the ship does not measure up to expectations, he said, he would not go at all, but added: "I would like to start tomorrow, if possible." This was taken to indicate his enthusiasm over prospects of the international event.

In course of the interview, Lieut. Williams took occasion to express his appreciation for the many courtesies that have been extended him by Capt. William F. Halsey, officer in charge of ships, assigned to the local station and director of aeronautical affairs. Similarly, he felicitated the corps naval aviation instructors here.

The racer was in full view today as it sailed in the fall yard, climbed the high fence around the yard and escaped yesterday afternoon, it was learned today. Tanner was doing 60 days for a prohibition violation. He was to have been turned over to Campbell County for trial on a similar charge when his city sentence was served.

DR. SNOOK WEEPS: TELLS OF SLAYING

Former Professor Admits Sleeping Soundly Night He Killed Girl.

ENDEARMENTS IN NOTES

Courtroom, Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 8 (A.P.).—The steel snapper and Dr. James H. Snook wept on the witness stand as he told the jury in his first degree murder trial today how he killed Theresa Hix.

The former professor wept, when he spoke of his wife, on two occasions. He said that after killing the girl, he went home to his wife and children, identified Miss Hix' blood-stained dress and the pocket knife, but denied remembering using it.

He said that he was the victim of foul language during the long questioning after his arrest the next day and charged that Prosecutor Chester slapped him. He said he signed a confession, which he claimed was no more than a stenographer's shorthand notes, to rid himself of the questioning which had broken him down.

Prosecutor Chester vigorously cross-examined him and showed him that the gun which he said the girl threatened to use was broken and would not fire. A relentless cross-examination to break down the good spring the account of the killing was undertaken by Prosecutor Chester just before adjournment. He made no reference to the defendant's direct testimony about the killing itself during his first barrage of cross-questioning, but took Dr. Snook through a review of letters he had written Miss Hix on several occasions.

Endearments in Letters.

The letters were filled with endearments, terms and expressions bearing on the illicit relationship between the professor and the girl, which during the three years they knew each other. They were written to Miss Hix while she was in summer training at Cleveland in the summer of 1928.

For purposes of correspondence, Dr. Snook was known to his young paramour as "Doc." He wrote her a half dozen or more letters signed with that name, expressing regret that they were apart and arranging opportunities for them to be together.

Over the objections of defense attorneys, the prosecutor read excerpts from these epistles, while a curious crowd of spectators remained perfectly quiet, lest they might lose a word. The defense had no objection to the reading of the letters in its entirety, but protested the use of pertinent paragraphs which Chester picked out in the hope of showing the jury that Dr. Snook was more responsible than the girl for their intimate relations.

The prosecutor quoted a paragraph from one letter in which Dr. Snook urged Miss Hix to hurry back from Cleveland at the end of the summer and to skip out of her class at Ohio State Medical College, so that they might be together for two nights.

Admits Urging Girl to Visit.

"Is that the kind of advice you would give your daughter?" the doctor. The defendant said it was in this case.

Turning from the letters to the financial arrangement which Dr. Snook previously had admitted establishing for Miss Hix in order to help her travel to New York, the prosecutor asked him for a detailed statement of the funds he had given the girl. Dr. Snook said he had set up a fund of $1,000 for her and that she repaid it with 6 per cent interest.

Dr. Snook will resume his stand tomorrow for another sleep with Chester, who will have plenty of questions to ask him.

One of the questions will concern the sandwich which Dr. Snook said he had given Miss Hix the night of June 13 to continue their intimacy. His story varies greatly with that which the prosecutor outlined before the jury. Dr. Snook denied that he had given Miss Hix the beef sandwich which was found partly undigested in her stomach. He said it contained a combination of emotional stimulants.

Said Girl Bought Sandwich.

The girl told him that she had eaten before they met that night and brought along a sandwich for him, which she would not be hungry, Dr. Snook said.

The sight of Dr. Snook struggling with the steel snapper, which he had suddenly discovered that he was being asked to describe the manner of Miss Hix's death was a picture far different from that of the man who testified yesterday in an untroubled and confident voice. He moaned a rest restored him. In faltering tones he related the hammer blows.

"I'm sure I did not hit her more than four times," he said. "Did you really think Miss Hix was going to take your life?" defense attorney, Henry Sawyer, asked him. "I was certain of it," was the reply.

Killing of Man in Raid Declared Accidental

(Associated Press.)

Prohibition Commissioner Doran said yesterday an official report on the shooting of Tom Chandler, a farmer, by Capt. Charles Stevens, Federal prohibition enforcement agent, at the night of June 13, both while operating a police automobile and while in the precinct station house, and in view of his previous record, which included one other conviction for intoxication as well as other charges, he was discharged.

The policeman is 34 years old and had been a member of the District Police force since October 12, 1921.

FOX HUNTERS PLAN MONTGOMERY RIDE

Excavating for Postoffice Building Under Way in Rockville.

FARM SALE ANNOUNCED

The call to the hounds will be heard at the Orchard, near Editor, tomorrow evening when several hundred members of the Montgomery County Foxhunters Association gather for what is expected to be the biggest chase of the year.

Led by Stanley L. King, of Derwood, recently elected president, the association will hold the chase which was originally scheduled for last week, but which had to be postponed because of inclement weather. More than 50 hounds will participate.

Excavating of the site of the new Rockville postoffice on Montgomery avenue is now under way, and it is expected that it will be ready for occupancy by January 1. The building is to be erected for Broderus Bros., of Rockville, who will lease the ground for a period of ten years.

Alfred C. Warthen & Sons, of Kensington, are the contractors, and the cost of the building, which will be of two stories, will be approximately $40,000.

The Cammack, or Kahler, farm, just off the Seventh street pike, on the road to Lay Hill, is to be sold by Francis J. Buchanan, of Washington, D. C., and Warrenton, Va. It was owned by the late John Cammack, and contains 225 acres and is considered ideal as a stock farm, for which purpose Mr. Buchanan is understood to have purchased it. The consideration is understood to be $95,000.

Inquiry Into Fund Is Favored by King

Thinks Perhaps Statement of Mrs. Willebrandt Concerns Vase Case.

(Associated Press.)

Senator King, of Missouri, said yesterday that if any evidence can be submitted that the quarter-million dollar political fund mentioned by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt in a current series of newspaper articles "was used in the 1928 Pennsylvania primary," he would favor an investigation of the circumstances by the Senate committee which inquired into the campaign in that year of Senator-elect Vane, of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Willebrandt wrote that $250,000 was found in a safe deposit box at the home of a senator after he died and that the money was turned over to another political leader. She did not mention names.

Senator King is a member of the Vane investigating committee, of which former Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, was chairman. The Utah senator said he saw no reason for investigating Mrs. Willebrandt's statement unless evidence was submitted that the money was used in the campaign over which the committee has jurisdiction.

"I was disappointed at first," said Capt. G. E. McNeill, skipper of the former record holder, telling of the first of three days in which the liner equaled or surpassed her previous record.

This weather lasted until Sunday night. An operation was performed Monday on Mont D. Rogers, president of Dobbs & Co., of New York, who came on Wednesday, and part of a sale left the ship on Thursday and Wednesday.

Seabots and oilskins were needed when the Mauretania left Cherbourg Saturday, the captain said. Spray was thrown upon the bridge, and after that a "lumpy sea" further retarded progress. Cunarder, 23 Years in Service, Still 4 Hours Behind Bremen's Time for Westward Crossing of Atlantic; Held by Sea, Fog and Operation.

New York, Aug. 8 (A.P.).—The 22-year-old Cunarder Mauretania came to port today after her speediest westward crossing of the Atlantic, but even that was not sufficient to reclaim the record now held by the new Lloyd liner Bremen.

Retarded by bad weather and a curtailment of speed for an operation aboard, the Bremen was submitted to Ambrose Lightship, the "tape" at this side, at 10:38 a. m. (Eastern daylight time), 4 days 21 hours and 44 minutes, after she left Cherbourg breakwater last Saturday on a voyage of 3,078 miles.

The time was 4 hours and 20 minutes, better than her own record, but 4 hours and 2 minutes behind the record of the Bremen. Her average speed for the voyage was 25.30 knots as compared with the 26.04 average of the Bremen.

SOUTH'S RESOURCES
TOLD AT INSTITUTE

North Carolina Geologist
Says States Should Make Inventory.

LAGS BEHIND IN WEALTH

University, Va., Aug. 8 (A.P.).—Figured on a basis of total population of the Nation, the South has its share of farms, agricultural products, highways, timber, tobacco products, minerals, naval stores, fertilizer and mineral products, but falls behind in a proportionate share of manufactured products, wealth, bank deposits, developed water power, fish products, blast furnace products and paper manufacture. H. J. Bryson, State geologist of North Carolina, said at the Institute of Public Affairs, University of Virginia, in a speech prepared for delivery today.

"The South as a whole," continued Mr. Bryson, "is a well-balanced district. It possesses its share of more things pertinent to the general welfare of the public than any other section of the United States.

"The continued growth and prosperity of the South will depend largely on what use the people make of their natural resources. There is no other section of the country endowed with a greater abundance of resources. If used wisely, these resources are safe and permanent foundations upon which to build a great South.

Says Inventory Needed.

"Every business to succeed must take an inventory of its assets at regular intervals. The South today needs such an inventory. This inventory should consist of two things: First, the natural wealth of the South, and second, a digest of the industries which are based for the most part on this natural wealth. It is necessary to know accurately what we have in the form of raw materials and to what extent these have been developed in order to determine what further steps may profitably be taken to advance the welfare of the South.

"It is important to know what industries are needed to supplement existing industries as well as what new opportunities there are in the South. It is equally valuable to know what lines of production are over-emphasized in order to discourage further expansion in these lines and offer little or no opportunity for success. Every Southern State should provide sufficient funds to enable it to carry on such a program.

"Many would say that the expense of taking such an inventory would be great, but would not the State be well repaid in the end? Last year, the State of North Carolina undertook such a project and a small party under the direction of the department of conservation and development. The results of these investigations are published in a volume entitled 'Resources and Industries of North Carolina.' It is now available for distribution from the department of conservation. Just what effect this information will have in securing other industries for the State yet remains to be seen.

Compare South With Nation.

Taking sixteen States which he classified as the "South," in beginning his talk, gave a comprehensive review of figures comparing this section of the country with the Nation as a whole. He showed that this group has 32 per cent of the total area of the United States and 30 per cent of the population.

"The latest figures available," he continued, "show that the South has 28 per cent of the total wealth; 16 per cent of the bank deposits; 50 per cent of the farms; 37 per cent of the highways; 28 per cent of the timber; 18 per cent of the potential water power; 24 per cent of the developed water power; 10 per cent of imports, and 34 per cent of exports.

"They also show that the South produces 38 per cent of the farm crop, 34 per cent of the agricultural products (including all farm crops and live stock); 27 per cent of the blast furnace products; 68 per cent of the tobacco products; 66 per cent of the lumber; 10 per cent of the paper; 100 per cent of the naval stores; 70 per cent of the fertilizer, and 33 per cent of the mineral products.

To Get New Rectory

Building Will Be Erected
in Rear of New St. Paul's Memorial Church.

Special to The Washington Post.
Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 8.—Work has been begun on a new rectory for St. Paul's Memorial Church, at the University of Virginia, to be located just in the rear of the new church edifice, completed one year ago at a cost of $175,000.

The cost of the rectory will be $15,000. Members of the committee in charge of the work said today that the architecture will be in keeping with the church building itself. It will be of brick and two stories in height. It was designed by Bradbury & Co., Richmond architects.

The new rectory will probably be ready for occupancy some time in the late fall. The present rectory of St. Paul's is a wing of the church building. The rectory is the Rev. Noble C. Powell.

Former Virginia Pastor
Is on Road to Recovery

Staunton, Va., Aug. 8.—Former parishioners here have been advised that the Rev. Dr. W. E. Davis is making progress toward complete recovery at Myrtle Beach, S. C., where he is spending the summer.

Dr. Davis, former pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church here, who resigned to accept the call to Central Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, Ga., resigned some months ago, due to ill health, and underwent a serious operation. He hopes to be able to resume his work in the ministry within a few months.

CHIEF PRO TEM

DEAN JOHN E. WILLIAMS.

DEAN TO FILL V.P.I.
PRESIDENT'S CHAIR

Dr. J. E. Williams Appointed
During Vacation Period of
Dr. J. A. Burruss.

POPULAR AT INSTITUTION

Special to The Washington Post.
Blacksburg, Aug. 6.—Dr. John E. Williams, dean of the college at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, will act as administrative head of the institution during the three-month leave of absence of the board of visitors has granted Dr. Julian A. Burruss, president of V. P. I.

Dr. Burruss, it is understood, expects to devote most of his time to his duties as district governor of Rotary Clubs in Virginia and as chairman of the State Agricultural Commission, appointed by Gov. Byrd. After holding principal positions in the State since 1919, he has been dean of the college since September, 1924, and in the five years has won a place with the student body as one of the most popular members of the faculty. Despite numerous duties connected with the deanship and teaching, he is never too busy to confer with students on their scholarship or individual difficulties.

Dean Williams is a native of Charlotte County and was graduated from Hampden-Sydney College in 1892. He obtained his master's degree from the University of Virginia in 1899 and the doctor of philosophy degree from the same institution in 1902. His alma mater conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of laws in 1925.

In 1903 he was professor of mathematics at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. He was a member of the American Mathematical Society, Mathematical Association of America, Virginia Academy of Science, Association of Virginia Colleges, which organization he served as president in 1920; Phi Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Kappa and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Contract Is Given

Fredericksburg Is Scene of
$1,000,000 Manufacturing
Enterprise.

Special to The Washington Post.
Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 8.—Construction on the plant of the Virginia Industrial Construction Co. of Philadelphia, The contractors already have shipped some of their equipment and actual operations will begin on its arrival.

According to the contract, a part of the factory is to be ready for occupancy October 15, when manufacturing operations will be started and the other buildings in the group are to be completed by January. The Virginia Industrial Construction Co. is a New York concern recently formed with a capitalization of $3,000,000.

The company has purchased acreage near the city limits and a spur track has been run to the site.

The product to be made in the local plant has not been revealed, although it was described as a "chemical specialty." It is stated by officials of the company that there is a large market for the product which is being kept secret until operations are ready to be started. At the outset the company will employ about 300 people, one-third of whom will be women, and this number will be increased when the full capacity is reached.

CAPITAL MAN HURT
BY ARTILLERY FUSES

J. C. Money Cut in Blast at Camp of the District
National Guard.

UNIT GIVEN NEW STATUS

Special to The Washington Post.
Fort Monroe, Va., Aug. 8.—Private James C. Money, of 56 O street northwest, Washington, a member of Battery C, 260th Coast Artillery, District of Columbia National Guard, was seriously injured here this afternoon in an explosion of a gun battery fuse cap he was said to have been firing.

Money received severe lacerations about his forehead and was given medical aid at the post hospital. Where his exact condition had not been determined. The accident occurred after all guardsmen had been given the afternoon off by Capt. Robert T. Daly, the commander of the unit who had warned against tampering with fuse caps or possessing the explosives.

To Be Mobile Unit.

Orders were received here today by Maj. Walter W. Burns, commanding the 260th Coast Artillery anti-aircraft unit of the District National Guard, in an annual encampment here, announcing that the 260th Regiment has been changed from a fixed defense unit to a mobile unit of anti-aircraft.

National Guard officers have been seeking this change for some time and the new designation means an expansion for the organization. Additional quantities of mobile equipment will be issued to the guardsmen and the personnel greatly increased.

Among the additional officers to be added will be a major for the medical detachment of the organization, one captain as additional medical officer, and one first lieutenant as detail officer.

Promotion for Grayson.

Capt. Stewart M. Grayson, at present commanding the medical detachment, will be advanced to the grade of major and an additional medical captain and dental first lieutenant appointed.

Maj. Burns states that the promotion of Capt. Grayson will be a very deserving one. Capt. Grayson was a major in the Reserve Corps before entering the 260th but suffered a reduction in rank in order to affiliate with Guard organization and through his efforts a strong medical unit has been developed.

A number of enlisted men also will be recruited for the medical detachment. The headquarters staff of the regiment will be increased by the appointment of one captain as regimental adjutant, one first lieutenant as adjutant and second lieutenant as adjutant and an additional captain and first and second lieutenant appointed.

More to Be Enlisted.

Forty additional enlisted men also will be recruited immediately upon the return of the organization from camp.

A number of noncommissioned officers also will be appointed. Practically all of the present noncommissioned officers of the organization will receive promotions. Maj. Burns is much gratified over the expansion authorized and announces that he will immediately recruit the regiment to the increased strength.

Officers of the organization were carried for observation flights over the camp this morning by officers of the Air Corps at Langley Field. This is an annual event with the guardsmen. Tomorrow will be devoted to field problems for the officers and the enlisted men will have the day off. The troops will return to Washington Sunday morning.

Divorce and Separation
Suits Fill Court Docket

Special to The Washington Post.
Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 8.—More divorce and separation suits have been filed for the October term of Circuit Court than for any previous term in the county's history, records in the office of Clerk L. DeW. Gerhardt show.

Among the divorce cases is one of Algonquin Barney vs. Avalena Barney, who were married at Hedgesville, near Martinsburg, 50 years ago.

for Daughter's Rites.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 8.—An invitation to all members of St. John's Lutheran congregation here to attend the wedding of Miss Frances Wagner, his daughter, to Winfred P. Warren, of Washington, in St. John's on Friday, September 6, at 11 a. m., was extended by Dr. F. H. Wagner, pastor, and Mrs. Wagner, in the monthly issue of the church paper today.

Miss Wagner is the second daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Wagner. No formal invitations will be issued, the announcement added, and an informal reception in the Sunday school room will follow.

Miss Wagner has been teaching school for several years.

About a year ago Prof. and Mrs.

Ralph Beebe, the latter formerly Miss Elizabeth Wagner and sister of the bride-elect, had a similar wedding to which a general invitation was extended.

SENATE RACE SEEN
BY GOFF AND NEELY

West Virginia Senator to Seek New Term, Is View of Politicians.

STRUGGLE TO BE CLOSE

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 8.—According to partisan political observers this State is to be the battlefield next year of one of the liveliest struggles in the colorful history of West Virginia politics. The principals in the contest, it is regarded as certain, are to be Senator Guy D. Goff, senior representative from the State in the upper House, and former Senator Mr. M. Neely.

No doubt is felt anywhere that Senator Goff will seek another term, and indications are his Republican opponent will nominate him as the primary. It is not expected he will encounter any serious opposition even though some of President Hoover's friends in Charleston, Wheeling, Clarksburg and elsewhere are not strong for him because he opposed the President in last year's primary and beat him by about 10,000 votes.

In his campaign for the presidential nomination Senator Goff had the backing of the old line party leaders and naturally they will be for him next year.

Former Senator Neely can have the Democratic nomination for the Senate and an additional seat in the House of Representatives for several terms and the only West Virginia Democrat to hold a seat in the Senate since members of that body had been chosen by popular ballot. Neely is looked upon as the leader of the Democratic forces in the State. His strength can be summed up to some extent by the fact that he carried 10,000 votes in the election. When Al Smith lost West Virginia by more than 100,000 votes Neely was a little more than 9,000 to Dr. H. D. Hatfield.

It may be some time before either Goff or Neely make formal announcements, but they will be forthcoming political observers prophesy.

State for 1928 Is Put at $195,021,000.

TOBACCO LEADS CROPS

Richmond, Va., Aug. 8 (A.P.).—Live stock sold or slaughtered represented the largest individual item in Virginia's farm income of $195,021,000 for 1928, according to State farm statistics released here by Henry M. Taylor, in charge of the division of agricultural statistics and the Virginia office of the division of crop and live stock statistics.

Of the 44.6 per cent of the total farm income earned from animal products, live stock sold or slaughtered accounted for 15.2 per cent. Poultry products stood second, being 13.8 per cent of the total income, and dairy products third, 14 per cent.

Tobacco leads all crops and was the fourth item of income, 9.8 per cent; fruit, 7.8 per cent; potatoes, 5.5 per cent; truck, 4.3 per cent; peanuts, 3.4 per cent; cotton, 2.1 per cent; wool, 0.4 per cent; and miscellaneous crops accounted for 13.8 per cent.

The figure of $195,021,000 for 1928 compares with $202,046,000 for 1927, a reduction accounted for in the statistical survey by the low price of potatoes and to a smaller tobacco crop disposed of at lower prices.

The value of wheat, fruit and miscellaneous crops was greater in 1927 than in 1928, but the total income from all crops (farm income total less income from live stock and live stock products) was $10,500,000 less. The value of live stock and live stock products increased approximately $3,800,000, so the total decrease was about $7,000,000. Live stock and live stock products have been contributing a larger part of the total income each year since 1920, the survey stated.

"The estimated gross farm income includes the value of all crops except hay, oats, rye, barley, buckwheat and 80 per cent of the corn crop, practically all of which are fed to livestock," the survey states. No separate estimate of the value of forest products on farms is made, but the value is included in other crops and is based upon the relation to all crops as shown by the 1920 census which reported the value of forest products on farms to be $25,000,000. The present value is probably between $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

"In the Northern, Western and southwestern districts the 1928 farm income was larger than in 1927, but in the other districts there was a decrease. The purchasing power of farmers in the latter group was much less than the income figures, which include products consumed on the farm, would indicate, because prices of the principal cash crops, tobacco, potatoes and trucks were so much lower than in 1927. The cotton and peanut producing counties of the southeastern district had a larger income in 1928 than in 1927."

C. R. McCLARY FUND GIVEN TO TRUSTEES

Alexandria Tribute to Slain Police Officer to Clear Home for Widow.

TOTAL EXCEEDS $5,000

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU, 212 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Alexandria 333.

The fund which was raised by public subscription for the widow and children of Sergeant Charles R. McClary, who was shot and killed by a Negro the night of June 30, has now been turned over to the trustees of the fund. Charles R. McClary, Jr., treasurer of the fund, yesterday handed a check for $5,000 to Fred C. Goodnow, chairman of the board of trustees, and the money will be used to pay off a mortgage on the home occupied by the family, and a substantial balance will be invested by the trustees. In addition to Mr. Goodnow, the trustees included Harry P. Kennedy, chairman; Mrs. Mary W. Troth, vice chairman; Charles C. Carlin, Jr., treasurer; and James T. Preston, secretary. One hundred and twenty persons aided in collecting funds.

In addition to the personal solicitation and voluntary contributions, the police and fire department basketball teams played a game which realized a substantial sum for the fund, and the Potomac Fire Department staged a moving picture show, the proceeds of which went to swell the fund.

McClary is believed by the police to have been slain by a colored man whom he had arrested a short time previously and turned over to the authorities of another jurisdiction on a charge of shooting. This man escaped from the officer who was returning him for trial, and the shooting of McClary followed two days later.

The McClary killing was the second of its kind within a year which the police have been unable to solve. The first being the fatal shooting of Sgt. Elton B. Hummer, just ten months earlier. No clue to the murderer of Hummer has been found by the police.

The city collector has called attention to the fact that persons who are delinquent in the payment of city taxes may now pay them with only a 3 per cent penalty, under the recently adopted ordinance. Under the previous conditions, they would be compelled to pay the full amount of taxes and an additional 3 per cent penalty.

The tax for the first half of the year was due and payable June 15, and the second half must be paid not later than November 15.

A band concert will be given by the Citizens Band tomorrow night from the study of Station WJLA at Mount Vernon Hills, Va., from 7:30 until 8:30 o'clock. The band will be directed by Prof. Otto Seidenbach, director.

The Citizens Band was organized in 1920, and has a membership of 24. It is supported by contributions from the city council, fraternal organizations and friends, and makes no charge for its services. The director, in the case of a member, receives compensation. It has accompanied the local fire companies to the State Firemen's Convention on five different occasions, entering the band contests of the convention, and has won three first prizes. It is to accompany the Alexandria contingent to the convention at Lexington August 27, and head the local men in the annual parade.

The Rev. Dr. E. V. Regeater, presiding elder of the Alexandria district of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, delivered an address yesterday before the Kiwanis Club at its weekly luncheon in the George Mason Hotel. The speaker was introduced by Arthur Herbert, chairman of the convention on arrangements, and Elliott E. Hoffman, president of the club, presided.

The Spanish Serenaders Orchestra, composed of fifteen orphans from the Odd Fellows Home at Lynchburg, will give a concert tonight at the Potomac lodge hall, beginning at 8 o'clock. The entertainment is to be in the form of a surprise program.

Bayer Tablets Aspirin

The Mark of Genuine Aspirin

BAYER ASPIRIN is like an old friend, tried and true. There can never be a satisfactory substitute for either one. Bayer Aspirin is genuine. It is the accepted antidote for pain. Its relief may always be relied on, whether used for the occasional headache, to head off a cold, or for the more serious aches and pains from neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or other ailments. It's easy to identify Bayer Aspirin by the Bayer Cross on every tablet, by the name Bayer on the box and the word genuine printed in red.

Needle Found in Her Arm Puzzles Woman

Special to The Washington Post. Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 8.—An unusual operation was performed at the Martha Jefferson Hospital yesterday when physicians took from the arm of Mrs. C. C. Muse, of Orange, about half of a rusty needle, the presence of which she could not at all explain. It was imbedded in the flesh just below the elbow. The other half of the needle had worked out of the arm.

For several weeks Mrs. Muse had suffered periodic pains in her forearm. She was unable to explain the trouble and was mystified when the point of the needle broke through the skin.

Place on Air Line Is Sought by City

Charlotteville Airport Is to Be Finished Soon, Leaders Say.

Special to The Washington Post. Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 8.—Verban E. Kamp, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, stated today that it was the ultimate hope of the city to make Charlottesville a link in the proposed East-West aerial route. This route will run between Norfolk and Cincinnati. Charlottesville is on a direct line between these points. This city is thought to be a logical stop-over on such an airway. The airport being erected by the Dixie Flying Service, Inc., is being completed within six weeks.

"Charlottesville," in letters ten feet high, painted on the roof of a large building, will greet visiting planes in the near future. The Chamber of Commerce secretary announced that a resolution had been passed providing for an appropriation to make the air marker possible.

The purpose of the sign was to give visitors their locations as they pass over the city. On the roof of the building there will also be painted a compass indicating north and south, and the direction and distance to the nearest airport. This step is being taken at the request of the Guggenheim Foundation for the Promotion of Aeronautics. Every city of any size in the State has been asked to make a similar move.

A problem was presented in finding a building with a roof large enough on which to place the letters of the marker, but the chamber now has in view several buildings, any of which it thinks will be large enough.

Apartment hunting is far from a pleasant task. Why not look in the classified columns of The Washington Post? Perhaps the very place you are looking for is advertised today.

GRANGE MEMORIAL HERE IS ADVOCATED

Prince Georges Members, at Pomona Session, Indorse Plan.

ROAD CONTEST IS LET

Endorsement of the proposal to erect a National Grange Memorial building in the Capital, to be used as the headquarters of the Grange, was given yesterday in a resolution adopted at the quarterly meeting of Pomona Grange, held at the Brandywine School.

The Pomona Grange is composed of the following subordinate Granges of Prince Georges County: Brandywine, Beltsville, the Student Grange of the University of Maryland, and the Eureka Grange of Chillum. Brandywine Grange No. 248 was host of the meeting, and J. S. Medekamp, master of Brandywine Grange, presided. More than 100 agriculturists from all parts of the county attended.

The resolution declared that Pomona Grange favors amendment of the National Grange law so that it will provide that every member more than 21 years old shall contribute at least $1.00 annually to the Grange fund; that not to exceed one-half of this fund should be used to erect a National Grange Memorial in Washington, and that the remainder be used to increase the legislative, publicity and organization activities of the Grange.

It also was voted that the by-laws of Pomona Grange be amended so that every fifth degree member of the subordinate granges shall have individual votes in the county Grange meetings, beginning next year. Heretofore, and at present, the voting power has been in the hands of the delegates, masters and past masters of the subordinate granges and their wives. Pomona Grange is the first in Maryland to adopt the change which will be recommended by the National Grange three years ago. State Master A. G. Ennor, of Forest Hill, attended the meeting, and expressed his approval of the amendment.

A resolution also was adopted expressing regret at the death Wednesday of Theodore Buchanan, Middlebrook, and at present, the voting power has been in the hands of the delegates, masters and past masters of the subordinate granges and their wives. Pomona Grange is the first in Maryland to adopt the change which will be recommended by the National Grange three years ago. State Master A. G. Ennor, of Forest Hill, attended the meeting, and expressed his approval of the amendment.

Following the business meeting, which was held in the morning, a chicken dinner was served by the women members of Brandywine Grange, and a program of music and addresses was held in the afternoon, with Mrs. Harry Naley, Pomona Grange lecturer for Prince Georges County, in charge.

The speakers were State Master Ennor, Superintendent of Schools Michael G. Green, who spoke on the Grange and County Health Officer William S. Keister, who spoke on education. Charles S. Barry, wife of the sheriff of the county, gave a recitation, and musical selections were given by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blaud and Mrs. A. Anderson, accompanied by Housan.

District Engineer E. G. Duncan announced yesterday that the contract for the construction of a lateral road to connect Central avenue with the Grange highway has been awarded to the Southern Maryland Construction Co. of Baltimore, on its bid of $24,960.

It is expected that this award will be followed by numerous others in the near future, as bids have been invited and are now being received for all of the roads to be built in the county this year under the lateral road fund, with the exception of River road, upon which bids will be asked within the next two weeks.

The Central avenue-Grange highway connection will be 1.06 miles in length, and of concrete. Work is expected to begin on the project by Thursday.

District Engineer Duncan also announced that a contract to build the bridge on the Sagaville road, north of Laurel, has been awarded to the A. Ward Co., of Baltimore, on its bid of $8,028.

Albert Gantt, W. L. Trot and Bernard V. Luers, trustees of the Bowie School, yesterday submitted a recommendation to the Prince Georges County Board of Education that a $30,000 contract to transport the 55 pupils of the school by bus be awarded to Norman Becker for $1,200 a year.

The plan contemplates that Becker transport the students in a new 1½-ton truck with a suitable number of lainglass windows, and that it make scheduled trips over a prescribed route, approximately 14 miles in length.

J. Raymond Schmidt, editor of "Twentieth Century Progress" and national lecturer of the International Reform Federation, will be the principal speaker at the temperance rally to be held Sunday under the auspices of the Dasherway Club on the lawn of the American Children's Association at the corner of Barney and Spa streets in Cottage City. The rally will begin at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Mrs. Joseph S. Dove, wife of the supervisor of elections of Prince Georges County and sister of N. L. Sanbury, Washington real estate dealer, died last night at her residence in Forestville following an illness of two years. Mrs. Dove was 71 years old, and had been a life-long resident of Forestville.

In addition to her husband and brother, she is survived by two sons, O. M. Dove of Washington and R. E. Dove of Forestville; five daughters, Mrs. H. L. Morris, of Upper Marlboro, wife of a member of the legislature; Mrs. Alice Baker and Mrs. Norman Collins, both of Forestville; Mrs. William Pyrie, of Silver Hill, and Mrs. John Owens, of Washington. Funeral services probably will be held Monday at the Methodist Church in Forestville.

Mother and Infant Die Few Hours Apart

Special to The Washington Post. Martinsburg, W. Va., for. — Mrs. Florence Virginia Cronk, 24, of Sleepy Creek, W. Va., died at a local hospital last night, surviving by only a few hours an infant boy who died a few hours after birth. Mrs. Cronk was Miss Davis, of near Shepherdstown, before marriage. Her husband, Paul Cronk, is a railroad man.

Revised Plans for Span At Smithfield Approved

(Associated Press.) The War Department yesterday approved revised plans of the Virginia Highway Department for a bridge across the Pagan River at Smithfield, Va.

TWO HELD IN RAID

Investigation Into Killing of Deputy Is Pressed at Frederick.

OFFICERS SEEK SUSPECT

Special to The Washington Post. Frederick, Md., Aug. 8.—With the consent of State's Attorney William M. Storm, efforts are being made by friends of Paul and Floyd Williams to secure bail for their release from the Frederick Jail. Both are being held in connection with the raid on a still near Thurmont a week ago which resulted in the fatal shooting of Deputy Sheriff Clyde L. Hauer. They are charged with manufacturing liquor for sale and will be required to appear before the grand jury which convenes next month.

In the event they secure bail, four of the men arrested in the raid with the raid will be out on collateral. William ("Mook") Miller and Walter Bennett, reputed owners of the still, were released last week on bail in the sum of $2,500 each on the charge of manufacturing liquor for sale. These four men were arrested in Hagerstown after the raid. Charles Lewis, a local farmer, of near Thurmont; Lloyd Lewis, near Foxville, and Lester Clark, Russell Bennett and Morris Clark, also being held in connection with the raid, are expected to return. A report from Hagerstown was to the effect that Doughty expressed his opinion as to the person who fired the shot that killed Hauer before leaving.

Sheriff Rodrick and State's Attorney Storm are still checking up on evidence in reference to the shooting. It was stated that no developments have been brought to light during the last two days except that Paul and Floyd Williams may be released on bail. It also was stated that no developments were brought to light during the next day or two unless new evidence is found. In the meantime, the police are continuing their investigation in an effort to fasten the crime on the guilty person.

Biting Man's Ear Costs Fine of $50

Virginian, Accused of Arson, Quarreled With Alleged Victim, It Is Said.

Special to The Washington Post. Danville, Va., Aug. 8.—E. C. Perkins, arrested yesterday on a charge of arson paid a fine of $50 this afternoon in the Shenandoah Police Court for biting off part of Walter Zane's ear on July 27. Perkins was charged with a simple assault instead of murder. According to the evidence, the two men quarreled over a note of $128 which Zane had given. The feud had been continued pending Zane's recovery.

Perkins will be given a preliminary hearing on the arson charge next Tuesday. It developed today that last Monday, more than 34 hours before the bite was inflicted, Perkins' claims he desired to curtail his preliminary. Perkins was charged with the use of an affidavit alleged to have been obtained by police on the grounds that Perkins had given the note before a warrant had been sworn out against him.

Virginia Port Authority To Meet in Staunton

Special to The Washington Post. Staunton, Va., Aug. 8.—The midsummer meeting of the Virginia State Port Authority will be held in this city tomorrow, according to an announcement received from Port Director W. A. Cox.

The conference will be principally in the interest of and for the information of apple growers and exporters. The feature of the conference is composed of J. Gordon Bohannon, of Petersburg, who also is president of the State Port Association; J. Scott Parsons, of Richmond; and W. H. King, Alexandria; Kent Apperson, special representative, and Port Director Cox.

Johnson said he did not know whether Bishop James Cannon, Jr., would take part in the campaign. Bishop Cannon, organizer of the anti-Smith Democrats, now lives in Washington, but while watching from afar he has actively participated in the primary through statements setting forth his views.

Bishop Cannon, as well as Dr. Brown, hold what they term "Raschism" in the National Democratic party. In his message to the anti-Smith convention, declared the principal issue, "Raschism" versus "Bourgeois Democracy" and in a subsequent statement from Washington said prohibition was also an issue in the Virginia election.

Kansas City, Aug. 8 (A.P.)—A message assuring "very assistance that may be properly extended" was sent today to John Garland Pollard, nominated Tuesday as the Democratic candidate for Governor of Virginia, by Joseph Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of Democratic national committee.

Shouse remarked that Pollard "is not the choice of any small group, but seeks through serious counsel to dictate the party policy of honest men and women."

Petersburg Plans New Zone System

Contract Is Awarded for Municipal Survey to Cost $3,000.

Special to The Washington Post. Petersburg, Va., Aug. 8.—The city council at a meeting held last night determined to adopt a new zoning ordinance for the city. The contract for making the necessary maps and doing other work has been awarded to Allen J. Saville, Inc., zoning experts of Richmond, at a cost of $3,000.

City Manager Paul S. Morton today wrote Mr. Saville to begin work at once on the scientific survey. That survey will include the preparation of a height map giving the height of all existing buildings in the city. An area map will also be made which will show the percentage of each lot, unoccupied, and the setback lines.

These maps are to be used as a guide for the zoning commission in establishing various districts. A tentative zoning ordinance will be prepared by Mr. Saville and also the final map which will be submitted to the mayor and city council. The commission will be appointed by the judges of the Hustings court of Petersburg who will serve without pay.

Special to The Washington Post. Eastern, Md., Aug. 8.—At the meeting yesterday evening of the Talbot County Board of Education, with Prof. E. W. Pruitt, the new superintendent of the public schools of Talbot County present, the following appointments of teachers for the different schools in Talbot County were made:

Petersburg Plans New Zone System

Contract Is Awarded for Municipal Survey to Cost $3,000.

Special to The Washington Post. Petersburg, Va., Aug. 8.—The city council at a meeting held last night determined to adopt a new zoning ordinance for the city. The contract for making the necessary maps and doing other work has been awarded to Allen J. Saville, Inc., zoning experts of Richmond, at a cost of $3,000.

City Manager Paul S. Morton today wrote Mr. Saville to begin work at once on the scientific survey. That survey will include the preparation of a height map giving the height of all existing buildings in the city. An area map will also be made which will show the percentage of each lot, unoccupied, and the setback lines.

These maps are to be used as a guide for the zoning commission in establishing various districts. A tentative zoning ordinance will be prepared by Mr. Saville and also the final map which will be submitted to the mayor and city council. The commission will be appointed by the judges of the Hustings court of Petersburg who will serve without pay.

CAPITAL MARINES WIN RIFLE HONORS

John F. Fondahl First With Score of 243 on Range at Quantico.

BREAK CAMP TOMORROW

Special to The Washington Post. Quantico, Va., Aug. 8.—The newly organized 401st Company Marine Corps reserve came through as winners on the rifle range here this afternoon, competing against other companies from New York, Philadelphia, St. Paul and Toledo. The Washington company qualified a large percentage of expert riflemen sharpshooters and marksmen.

The first sergeant of the company, John E. Fondahl of the metropolitan police traffic squad, won individual high honors with a score of 243 out of a possible perfect 250. Corporal Nat R. Hodgson, also of Washington, was second with 239. Luther Gentry, also a member of the Washington company, was third with 237.

The company will take part in the final review and inspection tomorrow afternoon. Sunday Butler, Chief of Police Henry G. Pratt, of Washington, has been invited to Washington to attend the convention of State clerks to be held there tomorrow and Saturday.

Special to The Washington Post. Danville, Va., Aug. 8.—E. C. Perkins, arrested yesterday on a charge of arson paid a fine of $50 this afternoon in the Shenandoah Police Court for biting off part of Walter Zane's ear on July 27. Perkins was charged with a simple assault instead of murder. According to the evidence, the two men quarreled over a note of $128 which Zane had given. The feud had been continued pending Zane's recovery.

Perkins will be given a preliminary hearing on the arson charge next Tuesday. It developed today that last Monday, more than 34 hours before the bite was inflicted, Perkins' claims he desired to curtail his preliminary. Perkins was charged with the use of an affidavit alleged to have been obtained by police on the grounds that Perkins had given the note before a warrant had been sworn out against him.

Special to The Washington Post. Staunton, Va., Aug. 8.—The midsummer meeting of the Virginia State Port Authority will be held in this city tomorrow, according to an announcement received from Port Director W. A. Cox.

The conference will be principally in the interest of and for the information of apple growers and exporters. The feature of the conference is composed of J. Gordon Bohannon, of Petersburg, who also is president of the State Port Association; J. Scott Parsons, of Richmond; and W. H. King, Alexandria; Kent Apperson, special representative, and Port Director Cox.

Johnson said he did not know whether Bishop James Cannon, Jr., would take part in the campaign. Bishop Cannon, organizer of the anti-Smith Democrats, now lives in Washington, but while watching from afar he has actively participated in the primary through statements setting forth his views.

Bishop Cannon, as well as Dr. Brown, hold what they term "Raschism" in the National Democratic party. In his message to the anti-Smith convention, declared the principal issue, "Raschism" versus "Bourgeois Democracy" and in a subsequent statement from Washington said prohibition was also an issue in the Virginia election.

Kansas City, Aug. 8 (A.P.)—A message assuring "very assistance that may be properly extended" was sent today to John Garland Pollard, nominated Tuesday as the Democratic candidate for Governor of Virginia, by Joseph Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of Democratic national committee.

Shouse remarked that Pollard "is not the choice of any small group, but seeks through serious counsel to dictate the party policy of honest men and women."

MR. HOOVER'S GIFT.

President Coolidge suggested at the close of his term that a suitable mountain retreat be provided for the President. He recognized the need for a place near enough to Washington to allow the President to spend week-ends there. The plan to establish a remote summer White House where the Chief Executive would feel obligated to spend his vacations each year has been discredited, but the desirability of a nearby retreat which offers relief from official duties for short periods is generally recognized.

President Hoover has made a generous offer of such a retreat. He has found the week-end trips to his camp at the headwaters of the Rapidan River so enjoyable and invigorating that he wishes to preserve the place for the use of future Presidents. William E. Carson, chairman of the Virginia Conservation Commission, makes it plain in his letter to President Hoover that the State offered him the land and a suitable building. But Mr. Hoover preferred to purchase it himself, and make a gift of it to future Presidents. Years hence the camp will no doubt be a unique memorial of his donor.

A finer site for a presidential camp could not have been selected. The property, 164 acres of mountain and forest land, is in Madison County, approximately 100 miles from Washington. It lies adjacent to the Shenandoah National Park, and if the plan of Mr. Hoover is carried out it will some day be a part of the park, but reserved for official use. The road to the camp will ultimately be one of the important gateways into the park.

The generosity of President Hoover has solved a problem which might have taken Congress years to decide. The Government will be relieved of the necessity of appointing a commission to locate the most suitable site for a presidential retreat, and of the expense of purchasing the land. It is only right that funds for developing the site should come from the Treasury. It would be quite out of harmony with the wild nature of the Rapidan headwaters to construct an elaborate summer White House there. But a commodious mountain home, with all accommodations essential to the comfort of presidential parties, would be most appropriate. The camp has already been connected with power and telephone lines. An adequate water supply should be provided. Complete development of the camp for presidential use should be provided for by Congress.

LABOR IN THE SOUTH.

Sharp differences of opinion on the labor troubles of the South came to light at the open forum meeting of the Institute of Public Affairs. The labor viewpoint was expounded by Thomas Tippet, instructor of economics at Brookwood Labor College, and Homer L. Ferguson spoke for the industrialists. The debate ran all the way from severe criticism of industrial methods in the South by the former to complete justification of those practices by the latter.

There was little disagreement as to the facts, but total disagreement as to interpretation of the facts. Mr. Ferguson admitted that the hours of mill workers are long and their wages small, but he contended that the standards of living are infinitely higher than before the advent of the industrial era. Mr. Tippet replied that the recent strikes were spontaneous revolts against intolerable conditions. Southern mill owners, he said, are still holding to the principle of autocracy in industrial relations, which results in inefficiency and creates a rebellious state of mind in the workers.

The debate brought a suggestion from Mr. Ferguson that "if the Southern textile owners and operators tie up with labor unions the textile industry will move elsewhere, as it already has moved once." This opinion is particularly interesting in view of the announcement several weeks ago that the American Federation of Labor intends to unionize the South. Where would the industry move? Practically all of the country, except the South, has been invaded by the labor unions, and the prosperity of the country is unquestioned.

The United States is a country that believes in protection. Both the cost of living and wages are comparatively high. The workman is paid sufficient to allow him to become a consumer, and both industry and labor profit. If conditions are such that the textile industry must depend upon labor that is not fairly paid, the remedy is not to be found in holding down wages. Every American industry is entitled to sufficient tariff protection to guarantee a living wage to its employees. The demand for higher wages is inevitable in a growing industrial section. The situation can not be met by moving factories into new areas of underpaid labor. If the South expects to profit by the development of manufacturing plants, it must cooperate with labor and see that it is well paid. The attempt to prevent unionization of labor is an economic mistake, and makes for warfare and failure.

FARMERS FORCED TO UNLOAD.

The Farm Board is being besieged on every hand to "do something" to stop the rush of wheat to market. Stimulated to action by rising wheat prices farmers hastened to unload their crops and surplus stores, with the inevitable result that the price became somewhat depressed. In a statement the board asserts that it is powerless to act immediately and suggests that "the proper method for handling the wheat situation is to perfect a permanent grain marketing corporation which can fully function all the time in all the problems which affect grain marketing by farmers." With this position there can be no quarrel. Permanent farm relief can be effected only through permanent organization. But such organizations can not be created overnight, and in the meantime there is the pressing problem of disposing of this year's crop. Can nothing be done to aid the farmer this year?

The board calls attention to the fact that there is a prospective world shortage of wheat this season and that, including crop and carry-over, apparently there will be no burdensome surplus. "The immediate distress," it says, "is due to hurried and, to some extent, at least, unnecessary marketing of wheat by farmers. If farmers can be induced to hold back their shipments past the congestion period," it continues, "the effect of stabilization will be accomplished and farmers generally will benefit by the slow market movement."

This is sound advice. It should be heeded by farmers who can afford to hold back their wheat. But the average farmer must have cooperation to carry out such a policy. Farm expenses rise during the harvest season and the farmer must have money, not only to pay his harvesting expenses, but so that he and his family can live. Many farmers realize full well that by holding back their crop they could obtain better prices, but they are compelled by economic necessity to unload their wheat at once. How to give relief to such hard-pressed farmers is a problem, indeed.

THE FIREMEN'S PARADE.

Under the able leadership of Sgt. A. J. Baragani, the Washington firemen's annual parade, celebration and jubilee has come to be an event of interest to the whole Atlantic Coast. The affair was inaugurated in a comparatively small way seven years ago, and last year 100,000 persons are estimated to have witnessed the parade or to have participated in one or more features of the celebration. This year elaborate plans have been made for a more extensive celebration, and invitations to participate have been sent to volunteer and professional fire departments of towns and cities in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

The committee has had favorable response from its invitations. It is indicated that there will be a record turnout next Labor Day, not only for the parade, but for the concert and ball game, the baby carriage parade, the band contest and the Mardi Gras that follow in the afternoon and evening. Washington should support this affair generously, for it brings large numbers of visitors to the city. The firemen look forward to the day when their annual celebration will be on a par with New Orleans' Mardi Gras, Los Angeles' flower parade and the Mummers' parade of Philadelphia. So substantial has been the progress of the last seven years that there is every reason to believe that this end will be attained.

AIR HORRORS.

Apparently the Graf Zeppelin was able to embark on its round-the-world flight without a stowaway. This achievement was due to the vigilance of two Americans, members of the crew of the American dirigible Los Angeles. They apprehended an 18-year-old youth from Trenton who confessed his intention of stowing away. Another prospective free passenger escaped.

The stowaway epidemic has reached a stage where something ought to be done about it. The young German stowaway who stole a ride on the Graf received exemplary treatment. He was arrested on board the dirigible and confined near the gorilla until the Zeppelin landed. He is being returned to Germany to face a jail sentence for endangering the lives of the Graf passengers. American lads who have tried this method of gaining notoriety have thus far suffered nothing but public censure.

Railroads are still annoyed with this class of unwelcome passengers, but the hobo of the rails seldom endangers any one's life, but his own, and he steals a ride only for the sake of transportation. The case is entirely different with aircraft stowaways. An extra passenger on a transoceanic airplane flight threatens disaster, and a hidden air hobo is capable of causing serious damage or destruction to a dirigible. It is well that officials took precautions to guard the Graf Zeppelin. Similar precautions will be necessary for every aircraft that takes off on a momentous flight until some method of dealing severely with parasites of this kind is adopted.

BARRED BY ARCTIC FOGS.

The experience of the Swedish aviators who attempted an east-to-west flight across the Atlantic several weeks ago may have a direct bearing on the ultimate choice of a commercial air route between Europe and America. Capt. Ahrenberg set out from Stockholm confident that the northern route via Iceland, Greenland and Labrador would be the future transatlantic commercial airway. After being stranded in Iqviut, Greenland, for weeks he has despaired of completing his flight and will return to Sweden.

The primary purpose of the Sverige's flight was to demonstrate that the northern route was practical for transportation of mail and passengers. According to Capt. Ahrenberg's theory the danger of flying this route would be much less than that of the southern routes, which have fewer possible landings. It was pointed out that from Stockholm to Reykjavik is only 1,375 miles, with emergency landings possible at Bergen, or on the Shetland or Faroe Islands. The hop from Iceland to Greenland is but 812 miles, and the distance is not much greater between Greenland and the continent. Advocates of this route have also pointed out that with several refuelings possible much larger loads of commercial cargo could be carried.

The one element not given sufficient consideration is the Arctic weather. Capt. Ahrenberg was repeatedly baffled by fog in his attempts to complete the flight. He is now convinced that the northern route is not practicable until some means of overcoming Arctic fog has been found. Apparently the advantage of convenient landing fields are more than offset by this meteorological handicap.

FRIENDS OF YOUTH.

The Youth's Companion is to be merged with the American Boy. Probably, in view of the swift pace set by modern industry and the stress that is laid on the economy of consolidations, the step was inevitable, but thousands will greet the news with dismay. What a pity that the Youth's Companion is to lose its identity! What a pity that there will be no more American Boy!

Into thousands of homes of a generation gone by came the Youth's Companion and the American Boy. The latter was, perhaps, the more robust; it commanded attention upon its arrival, no matter what else may have been planned for the day. The Companion was more gentle, and was sometimes put aside against the coming of the inevitable stormy, house-bound day. But each was read from cover to cover with avidity. There was Marcus Aurelius Fortinatus Tidd, fat boy extraordinary, whose adventures thrilled many a youthful heart and who, in time, became almost a flesh-and-blood companion. There were the departments on how to build airplanes that set jack-knives to whittling, on camping that inspired brave ventures into the woods, and others on the myriad activities that interest the youthful. And there were the advertisements! The departments, no doubt, will be continued; Marcus Tidd, or his counterpart, will disport through the pages of the new magazine and the advertising will continue to appeal to youthful desires, but there will be but one publication where once there were two, and there is bound to be a void.

May the new publication be successful! The merged American Boy-Youth's Companion will continue to be a potent influence in the molding of the character of American youth. May it enjoy great prosperity!

THE AMERICAN FLAG

By Rear Admiral P. F. Harrington, U. S. N., Retired.
On June 14, 1777, the Continental Congress passed the following resolution:

"Resolved—That the Flag of the 13 United States be 13 stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

That flag was intended primarily for use by naval vessels. Prior to its adoption, various flags had been displayed by the land forces and colonial organizations and by vessels. A flag, representative of the nation to which she belongs, is a necessary emblem under international law for exhibition upon the high seas. Its absence may raise the suspicion of piracy or unlawful pursuit; its presence points to the power and majesty of the nation.

The flag adopted by the Continental Congress was the first national standard which symbolized the union of States. In 1794, Congress ordered two additional stars and stripes, recognizing the admission to the Union of two States, and under that ensign was fought the second war against Great Britain.

Five more States were admitted to the Union without recognition upon the flag. In 1818, Congress ordered a return to the design of 13 stripes in the flag, but placing in the field a star for each State. That flag has never been changed except as new stars have shone in the Union. The lawful colors of the United States flag have never been varied since adoption by Congress 148 years ago.

"Sun-kissed and wind-tossed, the red and white and blue." No other color can lawfully be placed on our flag, the beautiful banner of an unique historical design and meaning.

Some years ago flagmakers adopted a plan of placing a yellow fringe around the flag. The fringe is at first a bright color of gilt or silk or cotton, but the fringe color soon becomes dingy in various degrees, and the purity of the flag appears no longer.

The weight of the fringe, particularly of the gilt fringe, holds the flag near the staff, covering partly the flag colors, so that in a parade there appear many variants.

The use of the fringe on the flag has been condemned by the Sons of the American Revolution, the Loyal Legion of the United States and other patriotic associations. The law makes no reference to a fringe, does not specifically permit or prohibit its use on the flag. However, Congress and State Legislatures have forbidden printing of advertisements upon the flag.

The flag of the United States in its pure design is the only one used officially upon ships of the Navy and Merchant Marine, over the national forts and public buildings, and, it is believed, over all public schools. The commandant of the Coast Guard ordered the yellow fringe removed from all national flags in possession of these corps.

There is, however, no general executive prohibition of the fringe. The Government does not limit the custom of the people; it gives official preference to the lawful flag but tolerates the variants.

The odious yellow fringe, defacing the flag of the United States, will be used by some people until a due respect arouses from all the people a clear demand:

"No yellow on the American flag."

Whenever there appears a general expression of popular approval of the condemnation by patriotic associations of these variants of our national flag, the Government and Congress will fix the use of one pure flag, and one only, for all time.

MEMORY.

If out of it all there shall come but this:

That yours are the voice and the smile they miss,

And chancing upon some old thing you've worn,

They shall stand and wish for the bygone morn.

When you whistled a tune, or raced the stair

And in memory shall fancy you still are there,

You will have wrested from all life's pain

As much as the richest on earth can gain.

The famous dead in their grassy nooks

Are little concerned that they live in books.

They would be called from the dust to see

To live in a song and the gentler things

Of the years gone by to which memory clings.

For this is conquest, at last to be seen

The dead the living still long to see.

The Heavy-Laden Need a Church for Burden Bearers Only.

By ROBERT QUILEN

NOWHERE in the Bible can you find the words: "Come unto me all ye that take life easy and live in luxury."

The followers of Jesus, trying to make their acquaintances believe a true prophet had come, convinced the doubters by means of the astonishing declaration: "The poor have good news preached to them."

The religion of Jesus makes its appeal to the poor. It is a religion of service—of doing good—of humanitarianism.

It can not harmonize with the "gogetter" spirit of modern commercialism. The greed for gain and the philosophy of Jesus have nothing in common.

Man can not serve two masters; he can not serve God and wealth. He can not lay up treasure in heaven if he would lay up treasure on earth, for where his treasure is, there his heart will be.

"Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

With those few words Jesus revealed the spirit of his philosophy and described the class to which he made appeal.

His friends were the poor and the needy, the outcast and the despised, the lower class of his time and place. His enemies were the rich and powerful.

And yet the church founded on his philosophy and preserved in his name never has championed the cause of labor or exerted itself to give aid to the poor except in the form of charity.

It has labored to save the souls of men, but not to shorten their hours of work, increase their wages or lessen their perils.

It has not even saved them from the horror of war—a sad business in which the poor suffer most and die first.

How do you explain it?

The explanation is simple. The church sought rich and powerful converts because it needed their protection and support.

Soon the rich dominated it, as wealth dominates all things, and the religion first preached to the poor became a polite and perfumed philosophy.

The pulpit urged the poor to be humble and content—to wait on eternity for their reward—for it dared urge nothing else. It became a part of what men call the "capitalist system," and spoke discreetly because it needed money.

Everywhere organized workers have turned a deaf ear to religion because religion turned a deaf ear to them. Radicals think the church an enemy.

The wrong crowd controls the religion of Jesus.

It is a religion for the poor, the despised, the sour with sweat, the humble. If these were in control of it, as in the beginning, they would worship Jesus still as their Lord and Champion. They reject religion because it did not remain loyal to their cause.

THE MAIL-ORDER AUTO.

A mail-order automobile is to be put on the market. It will cost only $200 f. o. b. your local postoffice. It will have no springs, no axles or chassis, thus eliminating 5,783 squeaks at the outset and saving great wear and tear on postal employees' nerves. But the millenium will not arrive until an owner can get gas from penny-in-the-slot machines.

The car, the smallest on the market, has been produced and found successful. You will soon find it in the catalogue of a big mail-order house between the "Complete Fishing Kit (No. 36789)" and the "Man's Cardigan Jacket (No. 45692)." You order it by number and await results. When you hear the door bell ring you know you have become a car owner.

The inventor feels that he has brought the motor car within the reach of all persons with postoffice addresses.

This is the era of the demi-tasse automobile. Everywhere you look you see the roads all cluttered up with oversized motor cars engaged in the exasperating pastime of getting in one another's way. When the road is clogged with elephants, a mouse has all the best of traffic.

The mail-order boiler will weigh so little that when a man tires of it he can throw it over the fence into his neighbor's ash-can. This saves him the trouble of driving 40 miles and leaving his old car for a share of some perfect stranger.

It is so small it will practically eliminate the parking problem. The owner driving to town for a share can pick his temporary parking place into the barber shop and put it in the rack with the shaving-mugs.

It will be mailed in a box, which can be used as a garage. This gives the buyer practically everything but running water, 25 feet of hose, a sponge and the usual dry rag.

It will be a cash proposition, although a big fight for a time-payment plan is expected from the goober who would like to pay 50 cents down and 25 cents a week.

The big argument is expected when the time comes for a trade-in. After a man has toiled a $200 bus through modern traffic two or three years its second-hand value is going to be a matter for warm debate.

"What will you allow me on the old model?" the owner will ask. "What year is it?" "Year before last, and in as poor shape as the day I bought it." "I think we can safely allow you $1.39 for your order a new car." "What? $1.39? Don't be silly. I can take it down to the Ford agency and get $1.40 for it right now."

"Why don't you?" "Because all four tires are practically new, and I figure they make the car worth 5 cents more of anybody's money."

"Are the tires all in good shape?" "Look at 'em!" "Well, then, I'll stretch a point and allow you $1.42 if you act at once." "Make it a dollar forty-three cents and the deal is closed."

"Nope, but I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll give you $1.43 and a cigarette that's been smoked only half way down."

"Fair enough."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A Democrat Holds That President Is Authorized by Cruiser Law to Postpone Beginning of Work for a Limited Time.

To the Editor of The Post—Those Americans who can and read and think for themselves will not agree with the criticism of President Hoover which is contained in a letter to The Post by one signing himself "Don't Give Up the Ship."

Any person who will take the time to read the President's statement regarding the construction program of the three new cruisers authorized by Congress, will readily see that the President's full authority for his action by the specific provisions of the act. The bill authorizing the construction of the cruisers provides that the President has a certain period of time within which to begin the construction of the cruisers. If, therefore, the President desires to postpone the beginning of this work to any date within the time specified by Congress for its beginning, he violates no provision of the act of Congress nor does such action violate the spirit or intention of the act. If the ordinary contractor signs up for a certain performance of work and his contract specifies that he has one, two or three years in which to start that work, there is no obligation on his part to start the work prior to the date or dates specified in his contract. This being true, the contractor may, if he sees fit, begin such work and suspend it as often as he chooses within the period outlined in the contract without in any way exposing himself to criticism, much less the charge of breaking or violating his contract. And if, within the period specified for the beginning of the work, the two parties to the contract agree to its cancellation there isn't a person in the world who would claim that the contractor violated anything.

Thus with the present situation about which much is being written, if Congress should, prior to the expiration of the period fixed for the beginning of the construction of the cruisers, authorize some other procedure, no person will or should raise the cry that the President neglected to carry out the mandate of the Congress.

Angle Parking Results in Damage to Cars by Reckless and Inexperienced Drivers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Something should be done in the near future to protect the interests of motorists who use or prefer using angle parking in preference to parallel parking. In many instances it is being used in downtown Washington to relieve congestion and to permit a longer period in which to park.

Unfortunately many motorists suffer damages to the extent of facing repair bills, due to the negligence or inexperience on the part of drivers (if you're to call them such), who do not know how to get in or out of angle parking spaces without bumping into adjoining cars. Many cars owned by being made the victims of this angle parking evil, and until some drastic action is taken, we shall continue to be jeopardized with future repair bills. There is no way to identify individuals who damage adjoining cars and then leave the spot.

Persian Minister Commended for Holding Legation Employees Amenable to the Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When the Persian Minister, Mirza Davoud Khan Meshkini, announced that he did not intend that any employee of the legation should "violate the laws of the District and then escape punishment under claim of diplomatic immunity," he set an example worthy of commendation.

No diplomat is amenable to the laws of the country in which he happens to be stationed, and no country could infringe upon diplomatic immunity without serious consequences.

But it is expected, quite properly, that a diplomat will have the courtesy to observe the laws of his host.

The Persian Minister has evidenced his respect for the laws of the District of Columbia conspicuously and tangibly. His example should be emulated.

Government Should Aid Development of Air Merchant Ships.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to express approval of your editorial on the American merchant marine. Of course we must build merchant ships for the transportation of our nationals and our goods. Congress so intended when it enacted the Jones-White bill, and the bureaucrats who stand in the way of immediate activity are unpatriotically thwarting the purpose of the law.

But in addition to surface vessels, we need airships. The Graf Zeppelin is cruising eastward with her passengers and cargo, the British R-100 is about to take the air for her test flights, and the huge Dornier-Wall Dox is ready to be placed in service. These airships will not take the place of surface vessels, but they will become direct competitors and they will monopolize a certain class of patronage. The merchant marine of the future will be incomplete unless it includes ships of the air; but what is the United States doing to provide them?

Out in Akron, two huge dirigibles are to be built for the Navy, and a group of capitalists proposes to utilize the same templates, machinery and other facilities for the construction of two commercial ships. So far as I have been able to ascertain, however, these plans are still nebular. It is high time for the Government to get behind the development of a merchant marine of the air, and the best way to start is to support in some tangible manner the project of the Akron industrialists. Unless the United States starts now to develop her air merchantmen she will find herself ultimately in the same position as regards sea merchantmen. The time to get the best of competition is before it has been developed.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Mrs. Chilton
Disembarks on
Visit to U. S.Two Daughters Are With Wife of British Envoy to Vatican.

CLIPPING her previous ocean record, but not that of the German transatlantic liner Bremen, the Mauretania has just docked in New York, carrying on her passenger list the names of Mrs. Henry Getty Chilton, wife of the British Minister to the Vatican, and her two daughters, Miss Elizabeth Chilton and Miss Anne Chilton. Minister Chilton is in Rome, where his duties have become more arduous and important since the concordat was signed between the Quirinal and Pope Pius XI.

The Chiltons have been away from Washington for a year, but they have not been forgotten. Mr. Chilton's promotion from his post as Counselor of the British Embassy here to become Minister to the Vatican, was the occasion for much genuine regret among his friends in the Capital. This regret manifested itself in the number of persons who turned out to bid the family farewell—in an outpouring of letters and telegrams from all parts of the United States—in a veritable deluge of last-minute parties and unofficial calls, as well as numerous other demonstrations. It is seldom that an outgoing diplomat has had such a "send-off."

Mrs. Chilton and her daughters may come to Washington, but this is not a probability. First, they plan to go to Grand Rapids, Mich., where Mr. Thomas O'Brien, father of Mrs. Chilton, makes his home. Mr. O'Brien was at one time United States Ambassador to Japan. After remaining there for some weeks, Mrs. Chilton is expected to return to New York, whence they will sail for England.

Miss Betty Chilton, the elder daughter, made her debut in Washington two seasons ago amid the usual eclat of flowers, overhauled evening gowns, and young men, swarthy, dapper, and good-looking. Miss Betty, however, did not do as well as she was expected to. She was not only not a debutante, but she was not even a debutante. She rapidly became one of the town's most popular bachelors and was asked almost constantly to the diplomatic set. Her sister, Miss Anne Chilton, was more a stranger to society here, because she was at that time still going to school at fashionable St. Timothy's, near Baltimore. Except for a brief holiday, when she visited here, she was not in the city, where she was seldom in the Capital.

Ambassador of Belgium
Joined by Prince Albert.

The Ambassador of Belgium and Princess de Ligne, who are summering at Gibbet Island, have been joined there by their son, Prince Albert de Ligne.

The Minister of Egypt and Mme. Samy Pasha expect to go to Hot Springs, Va., this week-end to pass a few days. They will look for a cottage there where Mme. Samy and the children can remain for the rest of the summer and can be joined frequently by the minister when his duties permit. M. Shari, brother of Mme. Samy, will accompany them. They will be attached to the Legation in winter.

Mme. Samy was among those luncheon yesterday at the Carlton. Other guests were the First Secretary of the Polish Legation, Mr. Wiktor Podolski; the Second Secretary of the Polish Legation, Mr. Jan Stalinski; Mrs. Howard Tucker, Mrs. A. Rainer, Mrs. Lawrence Wood and Mrs. Fenton Bradford.

The Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Ogden L. Mills have as their guest at Saratoga Springs the latter's daughter, Miss Dorothy Fell, Miss Dorothy Kane, of New York, who has been visiting her father, Mr. Grenville Kane at Newport, is also a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Mills at Saratoga.

The Counselor of the Spanish Embassy, Senor Don Mariano de Amodeo, has moved to the Wardman Park Hotel.

Miss Caroline Hyde, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde, has as her guest at the Mayflower, Miss Jane Caulfield, daughter of Gov. Henry S. Caulfield of Missouri. Miss Caulfield has been visiting for the past few weeks in the East, where she came with her father, who attended the conference of governors at New London, Conn.

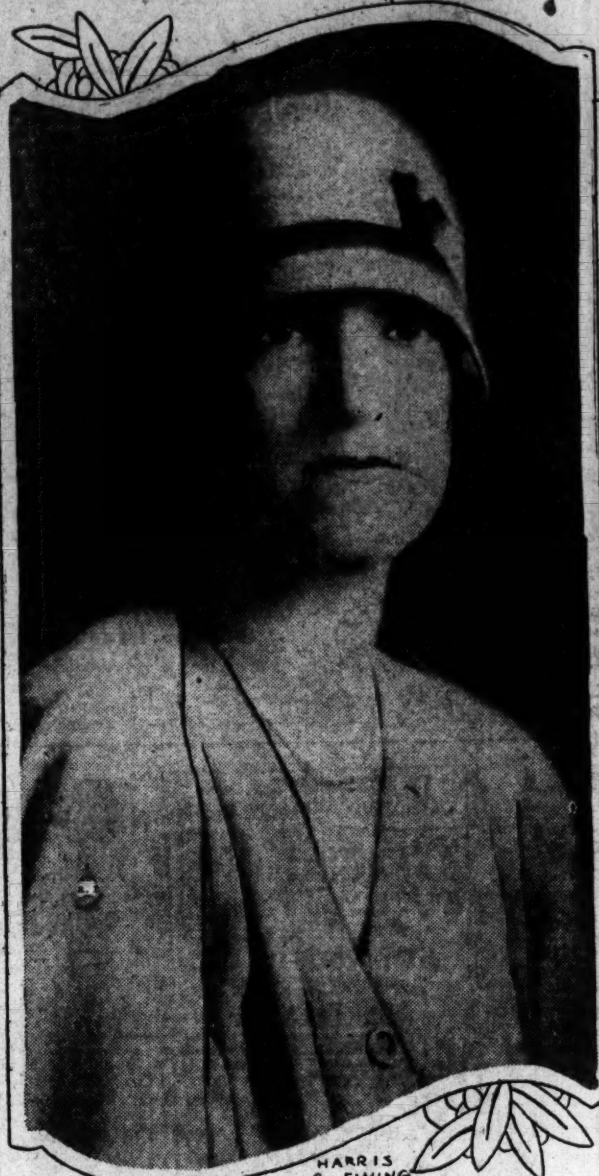

Mr. and Mrs. Glover
Going to Pennsylvania.

The Assistant Postmaster General and Mrs. W. Irving Glover, with their daughter, Miss Frances Glover, expect to go to Eaglesmere, Pa., tomorrow. Their sons, Mr. Thomas Glover and Mr. Warren Glover, have been there for a short time. Mr. Glover will return after the week-end to the Wardman Park Hotel.

The Secretary of the Roumanian Legation, Mr. Vintila Petala, is at the Wardman Park Hotel for a short time.

Col. and Mrs. Charles B. Drake and their daughter, Miss Barrine Drake, who have been motoring in Canada, spent several days at Gray Rocks Inn.

Dr. and Mrs. Macpherson O'Connell, with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Porterfield Light and Col. and Mrs. Osmund LaTrobe, have been passing several days at the Rod and Gun Club at Harpers Ferry. They will return today and tomorrow Dr. and Mrs. O'Connell will go to New York preparatory to sailing for Panama.

The Attache of the Roumanian Legation, Mr. George Duca, who has been passing the summer in Washington, will leave shortly for California to pass about a month.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John A. Hull are in New York, where they will pass a week before returning to Washington.

Dona Julia Brambilla
Guest of Mrs. Belmont.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont have as their guest at Belcourt, Newport, Dona Julia Brambilla, daughter of the late Mr. George L. Von Meyer, former Secretary of the Treasury, who arrived from Hamilton, Mass.

Mrs. Warwick E. Montgomery, Jr., has gone to Bar Harbor to be the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. James Carter, jr., and will later visit in New York before returning to Washington.

Mrs. Frederic Duncan McKenney has been joined in Atlantic City by her daughter, Mrs. Elaine Mallan, who has been visiting at Cape May, N. J.

Mrs. Arthur Wallace Dunn, wife of Lieut. Comdr. Dunn, formerly Miss Virginia McKenney, is passing some time in Newport, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Camden B. McKee have as their guests for the week-end, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wheeler Campbell, of Louisville, Ky., for whom they entertained at dinner last evening at the Congressional Country Club.

Mrs. William Hard and Mrs. Joseph Stoddard will motor to Blumont, Va., to spend the week-end at the place which Mrs. Hard has taken for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton Denison Hull sailed yesterday on the Berengaria for Cherbourg. After spending a week in France they will pass the following three weeks visiting continental countries, returning the middle of September.

Among others who sailed on the same liner for vacations in Europe were Mr. Robert F. Kelly chief of the division of Eastern European Affairs.

Since Return

German Counselor Gives
Two Banquets; Entertains
Delegation.

The last few days have been busy ones for Dr. Otto C. Kiep, Counselor and Charge d'Affaires of the German Embassy. Having just landed in New York on Tuesday, after passing several weeks in his native country, he has since been entertaining distinguished visitors. Shortly after his arrival in Washington he was host at luncheon to a group of his countrymen who are here to study broadcasting—Dr. Kurt Magnus, Herr Willy Steinkopf, Herr Friedrich Blouck and Herr Hans Baudenslecht. At the luncheon, which took place at the Carlton, were also the German Consul General at New York, Herr Karl von Lewinski; the First Secretary of the German Embassy, Herr Emil L. Baer; Mr. Kurt Sell, Mr. J. G. Schumann and Mr. Ralph Edmunds.

Dr. Kiep entertained at luncheon Wednesday in New York at the Ambassador Hotel for the officers of the Graf Zeppelin. Commander Dr. Hugo Eckener was, however, prevented from attending by last minute details which necessitated his presence at Lakehurst. The guests were passengers aboard the Graf Zeppelin to this country and included Dr. Leslie Kiep, brother of the host; the German Consul General at Singapore and Frau Weber, Count Albrecht Monteleone and Prof. Ernest Miliarsch, of Switzerland, and Herr Heins von Eschwegeleichenberg.

Mrs. William Crawford Gorgas, widow of the former surgeon general, has as her guest at her apartment at 1641 Crescent place, her sister, Miss Harriet Doughty, of Cincinnati. Miss Doughty has recently visited Mr. and Mrs. William Doughty Wrightson, son-in-law and daughter of Mrs. Gorgas, in Plainfield, N. J.

Mrs. Charles Collins Teague, of Santa Paula, Calif., has joined her husband at the Mayflower, where they will make their home. Mr. Teague, president of the California Fruit Growers Exchange, was recently appointed by President Hoover as a member of the Federal Farm Board.

Mr. F. H. Hitchcock, former Postmaster General, is at the Willard.

Mr. C. C. Paulding, vice president of the New York Central Railroad, is at the Willard.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Condon entertained at dinner last evening at the Annapolis Roads Beach and Tennis Club. The guests included Mr. Harry Angus, of New York; Dr. Daniel Carson Goodman, New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fridley.

Mr. John Caswell, jr., entertained a group at dinner last evening at the Plage Desauville at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. George Rose entertained at dinner last evening at the Plage Desauville at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. G. Eriebacher, who has been

Plan to Spend Early Fall
at Cape Cod; Parents Still Abroad.

Word has been received from Miss Sallie Hews Phillips, in Salisbury, Wiltshire, England, that she and her younger sister, Miss Faith Phillips, will sail for this country at the end of August and will go to their summer home at Yarmouthport, Cape Cod, Mass., for September and most of October.

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Ze Barney Phillips, with their daughters, sailed for Europe in the spring and have been traveling on the continent for several months. Dr. and Mrs. Phillips will not return to Washington until later in the fall.

Mr. E. Jackson Emerich will pass the week-end at Monterey, Pa., with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harman.

Mrs. L. A. Murphy has as her guest at the Wardman Park Hotel Miss C. A. Pierce, of Chicago.

Mrs. Glorietta Thompson and her daughter, Miss Vera Glorietta Thompson, of Hayes, England, are at the Grace Dodge Hotel. After several days in Philadelphia and New York, Mrs. Thompson and her daughter will sail August 17 for Liverpool.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus A. Cook, of Detroit, are at the Mayflower following a trip to Montreal, Boston and Atlantic City. Mr. Cook is president of the National Memorial Parks Association. Mr. Cook is active in the affairs of the Daughters of the American Revolution, being chairman at the present time of the Detroit committee on Americanization work.

The marriage of Miss Elsie R. Allen to Mr. Edward A. Ricker took place yesterday at noon. The Rev. M. J. Riordan, pastor of St. Martin's Catholic Church, officiating. Mr. Thomas Ricker, brother of the bridegroom, and Miss Jane Duval were the only attendants.

The First Secretary of the Chilean Embassy, Senor Don Oscar Blanco Viel, entertained at luncheon yesterday in honor of the Second Secretary of the Embassy, Senor Don Manuel Valdes, at the embassy. Senor Valdes is leaving Washington today for New York and will sail Wednesday on the President Roosevelt for Europe. He will join his parents at Pau, France, and remain there for a two months' vacation. The other guests at the luncheon were the Minister of Paraguay, the Charge d'Affaires of the Argentine Embassy, Senor Don Julian Enciso; the Charge d'Affaires of the Legation of Ecuador, Senor Don Juan Barberis; Mr. Benjamin Thaw, jr., the First Secretary of the Cuban Embassy, Senor Don Jose Baron; the Commercial Secretary of the Chilean Embassy, Senor de la Barra; Mr. Louis J. Little Girl's Face Broke Out in Pimples. Healed by Cuticura.

"My little girl's face broke out in pimples. They itched and burned causing her to scratch and scratching caused eruptions. She was very cross and fretful, and would stay awake at night and keep me awake. The breaking out caused disfigurement and lasted three months. I used other remedies without success. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and within a week she got relief. I continued using them and in four weeks she was completely healed." JAHNCKE PRAISES
NAVY EFFICIENCY

Assistant Secretary Is Back
From His Inspection of Various Stations.

HE FLIES 12,000 MILES

Assistant Secretary of Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke yesterday returned to Washington from an inspection trip of the naval stations of the United States that took him to the West Coast, Alaska and Honolulu.

"If there is any one outstanding impression I bring back from this trip it is that of Navy efficiency," Secretary Jahncke said. "I know that many people in civilian life nurse the idea of governmental inefficiency. I made these inspections with the eye of a business man whose business life has had to do with ships and shipping. And I can say that I found navy yards so efficiently organized and so smooth in operation that commercial firms could learn lessons from them."

"Everywhere I went I found officers and men taut and keen and efficient. And one of the finest things I saw on this trip was the spirit and the efficiency at the two great naval training stations at San Diego and on the Great Lakes at Chicago. To me I saw boys taken off the farm and out of the shop and the garage and the factory, put through a nine-week course of training that left them keen and alert and on their toes before they were sent out to the fleet."

IS GIVEN NEW BLOW

an increase in the spring and summer, it seemed all the more probable that a change would be made at the approach of the autumn season.

The brief explanation issued by the board today does not explain anything, but under the circumstances it appears wholly unnecessary to go behind the action itself. The simple fact is that months ago representatives of the board announced in plain language that unless the market reduced its credit demands steps would be taken to bring about correction. Since the methods were so roundly denounced, there can be no just criticism of the fact the further public warning was not issued.

In the face of repeated warnings, brokers' loans have continued to increase. The weekly statement issued today showed a gain of $60,000,000, carrying the total to a new high record above $6,000,000,000. This obviously, is the real cause of the severe blow now aimed at speculation.

It is true that the 5 per cent discount rate long had been out of line with open market money rates. It is asserted in some quarters that the increase to 6 per cent merely constitutes official recognition of a money market condition already prevailing and that it should tend to "clear up" the credit situation.

Regardless of whatever technical comment bankers may offer, however, it is the first time in nine years that the rate has been increased so sharply. Theoretically, it will tighten credit all along the line and immediately affect international credit movements. It will force the Bank of England to lift its rate or lose more gold to America, although that institution very likely will be aided by some variety of extension of American credit.

Actually the importance of the change lies in its psychological implications. For all practical purposes, it can be regarded only as a blow at the stock market. If it results in heavy liquidation, a shrinkage of brokers' loans and relaxation of interest rates, the Reserve Board's obvious purpose will have been realized.

ty members will submit this much of the bill to the Democratic committee, who, according to custom, are excluded from the actual revision sessions of the committee while Republicans are in power and vice versa, and proceed with rewriting the administrative features.

Ample Time for Changes.—Senator Watson said ample time would be given the Democrats to consider changes in the administrative provisions before the bill is taken up on the floor early in September.

Proceeding with their revision work yesterday the majority committeemen approved the retention of crude oil and all its byproducts, including gasoline, on the free list, but revised the House measure to permit American automobiles purchased abroad to be returned to this country free of duty.

Fidelman to Play Violin Over WRC

Leo O'Rourke Also to Be Heard — "Evangeline" on WMAL — "Blossom Time" Offered by WJZ. WOL Offers Recital.

The Cities Service Hour will be broadcast from WRC at 7 o'clock, with Sascha Fidelman, violinist, as one of the soloists. Leo O'Rourke, tenor, will also be heard. The Cavaliers will have a group of songs, and with the orchestra under the direction of Rosario Bourdon, the following program will be presented:

"Parade of the Pirates," Bratton; "Eccentric," Ganne; selections from "The O'Brien Girl," Hirsch; "My Isle of Golden Dreams," Cavallieri; "Kamamoto Ostriv," Rubenstein; "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," Leo O'Rourke, tenor; "Frolic," Ring; "The Bee," violin solo, Sascha Fidelman; "Song of the Volga Boatmen," Cavallieri; "Spring, Beautiful Spring," Lincke; "Polichinelle," Kreisler; "Passepied," Gillet; and "All Through the Night," orchestra and Cavaliers.

"School Days," sung by a quartet, will feature the Dark-Town Wanderers' program, "School Examinations," to be broadcast at 8:00 o'clock. Fred Van Epe will be featured in the banjo ensemble. J. Rosamund Johnson, barytone, will appear in his usual role of Uncle Isaac and Alvin Simmons will again be heard as Rufus.

Gus and Louis, the Schraderstroms, will appear in their usual role of "The Family Goes Abroad," a correspondence course in detective craft in an attempt to regain the Widow Biddle's stolen diamond and their own $300 in cash, go finger-printing among the members of the Schraderstrom Band this week.

The steady finger-print hunt will be reported through WRC at 8:30 o'clock.

Whether the Jones family should go to London by channel boat or by sea-coast, or venture for the first time of their lives into an airplane is the subject of discussion in the episode of "The Family Goes Abroad" at 8:30 o'clock.

The Slumber Music to be conducted by Ludwig Lutz will include the overture to "Der Freischuetz," Weber; menuet and finale from "Fifth Symphony," Haydn; "Artist's Life," Strauss; selection from "Tannhauser," Wagner; "Die Lorelei," Neustadt; and "Dreaming," R. Strauss.

The first act of "Blossom Time," a musical comedy in three acts, with music adapted from the melodies of Franz Schubert and Richard Strauss by Sigmund Romberg, will be presented by Muriel Wilson, Colin O'More and a supporting cast of Philo's "Theater Memories" at 8:30 o'clock from WJZ.

"Evangeline," theme song of the motion picture of the same name featuring Dolores Del Rio, is offered by the RadioCasters from WMAL at 7:30 o'clock. In addition, this quartet has selected the modern spiritual, "Head Low," and two popular numbers, "Just a Passing Fancy" and "Maybe Who Knows." The orchestra will contribute "Babbling Brook," "By the Way" and "You've Never Heard of Me Before."

The introduction and "Barcarolle" from Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman" are two of the selections from "Theater Memories" to be played by the orchestra during the Light Opera Gems program at 9 o'clock. Prima's "Like a Bird" will be sung by the soprano, the barytone contributing Herbert's "Gypsy Love Song," "The Chinese Lullaby," from "West is West," will be offered by the mixed quartet, while the orchestra selections are from "The Merry Widow," "Irish" and "Lady in Ermine."

Station WOL will present Donald Thomas, barytone, at 7:30 o'clock in a short recital. Mr. Thomas was one of the young local singers in the finals of the last Atlantic Record audition. Kathryn Dunning, pianist, will be heard at 8:30 o'clock.

The Har-Melody Boys, the regular Friday evening recital by David Martin, barytone, and the Columbia Trio are among the evening features from WJZ. Bran Hughes Orchestra will be presented from 7:30 to 8 o'clock.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LEO."

If August 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6 a. m. to 8:45 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6:40 p. m.

The astrological conditions are such that you should get up in the morning on this date full of zest for the adventure of the coming day. A great deal of unfinished business should be cleared off the slate, and financial benefits should be surprising and pleasing to those who put forth proper effort.

Children born on this August 9 will naturally have serious natures, although they will have a delightful sense of humor. They will take their responsibilities very seriously and will never allow their inclinations to triumph over duty.

You were born with a happy disposition and a chronic contentment in your heart, which has enabled you to cultivate an appreciation of the finer and more beautiful aspects of existence. Your achievements prove that a cheerful mind triumphs. You possess a sane and healthy optimism, and you are always hoping for the best, and looking for the silver lining in every cloud. You will not allow "defeatist" thoughts to dwell in your mind but banish them before they begin their "dirty work."

You have courage, initiative and determination, all of which are essential in any important endeavor. You are able to accomplish a great deal of work in a short time, without becoming mentally or physically fatigued. This is doubtless due to your state of mind, and the systematic and orderly way you have of doing things. Your thoughts are well organized, and your memory is a dependable one.

You are very fond of travel and can do so comfortably, as you can always make yourself feel at home within a short time in a strange land or surroundings. You prefer unbroken paths to the more popular and crowded ones, and you are eager to learn and improve your mind.

You are steadfast in your love, loyal in your friendship and a charming companion. You should have a happy and harmonious home life.

CBS Extends Contract of CeCo Group

Appearance of Providence Couriers Guaranteed to Nov., 1930 — McNamee to Broadcast Junior World Series Sept. 4

A contract just signed between the CeCo Manufacturing Co. of Providence, R. I., and the Columbia Broadcasting System guarantees the weekly appearance of 22 stations of the CeCo group until November 25, 1930. This extends for a full year the present contract between CeCo and CBS which still has four months to run.

The announcement of the extension of the contract was made by Joseph C. Buckley, advertising manager of the company. In his announcement he said: "We have several reasons for this long commitment ahead. Primarily, we realize our obligation as radio manufacturers to the public. It is of much importance that radio manufacturers be in the front rank as supporters of radio broadcasting. It is broadcasting which is the link between the public and the radio industry. It is imperative that broadcasting's best example come from the makers of the apparatus that permits radio to be enjoyed in the home. CeCo was the first tube company to definitely commit itself to a broadcast schedule of 52 consecutive weeks. It has been so successful that long before the expiration of our present contract with CBS we have seen the wisdom of maintaining the service indefinitely. Accordingly, we have extended the present arrangement far into the future."

Graham McNamee will take the radio audience to Louisville Wednesday, September 4, for a play-by-play description of the junior world series, the National Broadcasting Co. has announced.

The junior series constitutes the finale in the American Legion's junior baseball tournament, which is now being conducted in each of the 48 States and the District of Columbia. This series will last two and possibly three days, the winning team being styled the junior baseball champions of the world, according to Dan Sowers, the league's national commissioner.

More than 300,000 boys under 17 years old are now battling it out on more than 2,000 teams for the right to compete in the Louisville event. Members of the winning team there will be given trophies emblematic of their victory, and in addition will get free trips to every game in the "big league" world series.

The league baseball program is sponsored by the two major leagues to the extent of $50,000. The individual teams are supported during the elimination tournaments by various firms and organizations in their home towns, according to Sowers.

The baseball tournament is one of the league's major American activities, the idea being to teach American youth sportsmanship as a fundamental of good citizenship, Sowers said.

In the country-wide baseball activity, the elimination tournament is divided into twelve regions of four States each. One of the hundreds of teams in each State have worked through the local tournament, and the winners gather with the other three in that region at a designated point for a regional series.

Regional winners will then participate in a play-off of the sectional series, the winners of which will take part in the final tournament, August 20, 21 and 22, and the Western in Colorado Springs, August 20, 21 and 22. The winners of these series will then meet for the world title in Louisville.

Wouldst have a delightfully odd and lovely table decoration? Or a graceful decorative note in your boudoir? Just a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Department of the Washington Post will bring you an illustrated leaflet, which will tell you how to make these beautiful and decorative flowers.

The prettiest poplin and alpaca dresses, with the most delightful lingerie touches. Georgette and chiffon for the evening, and the most delicate of our fashion family noticed a darling mousquetaire collar and cuff set, covered with small red beads, which looked at first glance very much like lawn.

And then we illustrate a smart suit for you on the way figure. It is in a pale blue and white woolen fabric, smartly cut.

On the left such a chic outfit in black jersey with a red crepe de chine blouse, which has the latest bit of black embroidery.

The weekly Dare fashion letter, appearing in The Sunday Post has many novel and interesting ideas. You will enjoy it.

Au Revoir!

Another of her costumes for the same piece was a girlish dress of bright blue crepe de chine with white polka dots, with simple collar and deep cuffs of white crepe with blue dots. The skirt hem and the edges of the false bow were trimmed in a band of the dress material gathered into tiny pleats.

Another costume, which attracted favorable comment, was worn by Miss. Auger in the same play. This was of red taffeta, and had a long, long, long bow in the back that in the front, paralleled by the sloping hem, creating a lovely silhouette and movement.

Just wish you could see the two long slender crystal vases on either end of our very temporary dresser.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Black Diet for Mosquitoes.

A DISCUSSION of malaria control by a group of South African health officers and physicians brought out some points that should be of some service in controlling this disease on our continent. One was that cattle be secured on ground lying between mosquito breeding places and human habitations. Mosquitoes prefer the blood of cattle and horses to that of human origin.

If cattle and horses are pastured in the right locations the mosquitoes will feed on them and leave the people undisturbed. Neither cows nor horses are subject to malaria. In South Africa they build green cabins on the swamp side of the homes of whites. Mosquitoes prefer the blood of negroes to that of whites, and the former are somewhat resistant to malaria.

The cattle pasturing method has been tried in Central America, but without much success. In the very rainy weather which prevails in Central America the pastures become very boggy. The deep cow tracks left with water and serve as mosquito breeding places. Therefore they build stables for cows and horses on the swamp side of human habitations, but pasture in such locations such as that of South Africa, the method works better.

Another method they use is to treat every child in the community, regardless of symptoms, for malaria. For this purpose either quinine or plasmodium is used. The course of treatment is given at the beginning of the malaria season. The theory on which this procedure is based is that most of the children, both white and black, are malaria carriers. In their scheme of things the treatment of carriers is most important. To break up an attack of chills and fever promotes the comfort and well-being of the sick person. But the community is especially interested in the carrier, because he becomes the principal source of harm to the general public.

While negroes are less susceptible to chills and fever, they are very prone to become malaria carriers; therefore in Africa the spirit of the law is to treat every child.

There is a form of chronic productive arthritis to which women are peculiarly susceptible. Men have it, but more infrequently and at more advanced ages. Is there any preventive or cure? Are women more subject than men?

STOCKS ARE DRIVEN TO HASTY MOVING

Stocks Fairly Firm in Quiet Market—Higher Bank Rate Surprises.

STEEL AGAIN IS LEADER

New York, Aug. 8 (A.P.)—Further improvement in the call money market, and retention by the Bank of England of its 5½ per cent discount rate, prompted hasty stock covering on the stock market today, and prices developed considerable volatility. A rather dull market, total sales falling below 3,000,000 shares.

Many traders withheld operations, pending publication of the Federal Reserve brokerage loan compilation and condition statements after the close, and those planning to go long in the market were banking on the stock's rise this evening that they would be the New York Federal Reserve Bank, after the bank's earnings were released, had been reduced to 6 per cent from the 8 per cent rate which had been in effect since July 1928.

Although Wall Street some weeks ago was hoping that the discount rate would be advanced so as to have the uncertainty out of the way, the action coming at this time takes speculative circles completely by surprise, and has been regarded as a shock to the market.

Last spring, when Wall Street was reconciled to the prospect of a higher rate, such action was regarded as threatening to the stock market. It is recalled, however, that one close after the Reserve Bank had said "sometimes it is more effective to do the unexpected."

Brokerage Loans at New Peak.

The action is regarded as an effort to check the rising brokerage loan total, which in the week ended last night amounted to $200,000,000, a new peak at $2,000,000,000 to make funds available for the autumn agricultural and commercial requirements.

A brief statement issued by the board in Washington indicated that this was the motive, but it did not explain how the action will be carried out.

Wall Street has felt secure against a higher rate at this season, on the theory that the market would be stimulated to raise the rate at this season, as it might injure business. It has been repeatedly pointed out, however, that the 5 per cent discount rate was merely nominal, with commercial paper at 6 to 8 per cent.

The action was regarded as a move in view of the fact that the Bank of England did not increase its rate last week. The British Central Bank has been losing gold heavily in the past few weeks, reducing its reserves below the statutory minimum, and Wall Street has held to the theory that a higher rate at New York would tend to draw gold this way and reverse the embargo on the British reserve bank action, however, caused speculation as to whether some means of cooperation between the two banks evolved during the recent visit of Governor Norman of the London Bank.

Ratio Increased Slightly.

The Federal Reserve condition statement showed that the ratio of deposits to deposits increased slightly during the week to 74 per cent, as compared to 69.5 per cent, as compared to 69.5 per cent, as compared to 69.5 per cent.

Outside of the developments in the credit situation.

Outside of the developments in the credit situation, the day's news to influence the stock market. General Motors directors announced after the close the declaration of only the regular quarterly dividend, although an extra of 30 cents was paid in the previous quarter. Excellent sales and earnings statements continued to appear. Call money advanced at 8 per cent, but sagged to 6 per cent, however, held firm.

Some Rails Bid Up.

Some of the rails were also bid up rapidly, Atchafalpa rising about 10 points to a record at 277. Utilities rallied substantially, the American Telephone and Telegraph, American Tobacco, Consolidated Gas, and Union Pacific made wide gains.

Among the few soft spots.

Among the few soft spots, Youngs-Baker, and Tube, and Chesapeake and Ohio lost 3 and 2 points, and Jersey Central, which is closely held, dropped 1 point in a small turnover. Collins and Aikman reached a new 1929 low.

M. G. HALL, LEGAL STAFF
Washington Lawyer to Occupy General Offices at Richmond, Va.

STOCK TRADING ACTIVE

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.
Appointment of Marshall Carter Hall, lawyer of this city and Virginia, as general attorney of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, with office in Richmond, Va., will be announced by general offices of the company at Richmond, the appointment being effective August 15.

Mr. Hall's most recent connections have been with the firm of Carlin, Carlin & Hall, this city, from 1920 to 1928, in general practice, but more particularly in income tax matters.

Prior to this period, his professional associations were successively as attorney for the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., 1907-07; assistant to general counsel of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co., 1907-1912; attorney for Associated Railways and Steamship Lines, 1912-1913; and before the Interstate Commerce Commission, 1912-13, and in general practice in Fairfax, Va., 1913-20, when he was assistant director of the Southern Railway Co., and counsel for the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad Co., and the Washington-Virginia Electric Railway Co.

Born at Fredericksburg, Va., in 1885, Mr. Hall received his bachelor's degree from the University of Virginia in 1903 and his law degree in 1906. He was professor of modern and ancient languages at St. Ann's, Radford, Va., in 1904-05, and president of the general athletic association at the University of Virginia in 1904-05, and of the university football team in 1905.

During the war he was commissioned a major in the judge advocate general's department of the Army. He was a member of the board of directors, University of Virginia, 1924-25, and of the board of directors of the St. Anthony Club of this city, City of Washington, Farmington Club of Charlottesville, Va.

Decrease in Discounted Bills.
A decrease for the week ended August 7 of $11,800,000 in holdings of discounted bills and advances, $4,800,000 in bills bought in open market and of $10,300,000 in Government securities were shown yesterday in the consolidated statement of condition of the Federal Reserve Banks on August 7, made public by the Federal Reserve Board.

Member bank reserve deposits declined $32,400,000 while Government securities gained $10,300,000. Federal Reserve note circulation, including cash and cash reserves, $13,900,000. Total bills and securities were $34,000,000 above the amount held July 31.

Holdings of discounted bills declined $13,400,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, $3,200,000 at Cleveland and $4,000,000 at Richmond and increased $9,300,000 at San Francisco and $4,300,000 at Chicago. The system's holdings of bills bought in open market, including bills of Treasury notes, $14,200,000, while holdings of Treasury certificates declined $5,100,000 and of United States bonds, $700,000.

Brokers' Loans at $5,000,000,000.
Loans and securities to brokers and dealers for the week of August 7, were $5,000,000,000 or $600,000,000 more than the week ended August 7, 1928. Loans for own account aggregated $1,080,000,000, or $284,000,000 in excess of the previous week and $229,000,000 of the corresponding period last year.

Loans for account of out-of-town banks totaled $1,780,000,000 or $93,000,000 higher than the previous week and $201,000,000 higher than the comparative period of a year ago. Loans for account of others were $3,143,000,000, an advance of $85,000,000 over the week ended August 7, 1928, and $285,000,000 above the week last year.

Long Shot Out In Front All The Way
Winner Pays $28.10 for the Usual $2 Investment.

Karl Eitel Is Second, With Easter Stockings Third.

HAWTHORNE RACE TRACK, Ill., Aug. 8 (A.P.).—My Dandy, with jockey C. Allen in the saddle, carried the colors of the W. C. & E. W. Reichert Stable to victory in the Hawthorne Handicap, the feature attraction of a splendid card here this afternoon. It also marked My Dandy's third consecutive victory.

Karl Eitel, from the J. Coughlin Stable, making his first start since winning the rich Fair Ground Derby at Collinsville in June, was second and Easter Stockings, from the Audley Stock Farm, was third. There was a long delay at the barrier due to a kicking duel between Dowagiac and Mister, in which Dowagiac was badly cut. War Eagle also was responsible for much of the delay.

Of the 22 overnight entrants, but fifteen faced the starter. The race was worth $28,500 to the winner, $4,000 to the second, $2,000 to the third and $1,000 to the fourth stake.

My Dandy, avoiding the tangle at the break, went into a lead right at the start and made every pole a winning one to win in a drive by half a length. Karl Eitel, away fast, raced in closest contention through lengths. Easter Stockings, away fairly well and reserved of the pace for the first six furlongs, worked his way gradually and closed strongly to take third money by half a length. Dowagiac raced in third position to the final drive, where he was out of the running.

Mister, the favorite, was off in a tangle and had a rough voyage, finishing in seventh position. The winner rewarded his backers at $28.10 for a $2 stake. Ideal racing conditions prevailed.

Jockey Arthur Collins was suspended for the balance of the meeting after the third race, for taking his mount across the field at the start of the third race.

Aquestella Wins $11,775 Race at Saratoga.
Saratoga Race Track, Aug. 8 (A.P.). Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Aquestella, carrying 121 pounds, scored impressively in the Alabama Stakes, which is one of the oldest racing features in the country, here today, defeating rather handily H. P. Whitney's Lisa, with the Long Beach Stable's Whirl Vail third. The Middleburg stable's Electa was fourth. The winner paid 9 to 5 and earned $11,775 for her owner over the mile and a quarter route.

By her victory in this stake, Aquestella established a right to be rated the best filly in the East if not the country. At no part of the long journey was the filly ever out of a pole. Way was made for her and just let her gallop along in front leading all the way by several lengths. Electa made a determined bid to the leader, but she faltered in her effort and, when Lisa made a rush in the final eighth, Aquestella held her safe to win by a length and a half. Lisa took the place by two lengths, while the stable's Electa by three lengths for show money.

The Howe Stable's Double Pay, odds-on favorite, won the Roamer Handicap a mile and a furlong, which was third on the card. Display was second. There were only two starters, and Double Pay, against the favorite, Display delayed the start for a few minutes by his bad actions at the barrier. However, Double Pay rushed to the front and led to the far turn, where Display took the lead. Display came very wide in stretch and Double Pay, again taking command, won rather handily by half a length.

KAUFFMANN ADVANCES IN PUBLIC LINKS TOURNEY

Schoolboy, 16,
Is Among
Victors

Quarter Finals Gained in National Golf Tournament.

Fabrizio, the Early Leader, Defeated in 1st Round.

FOREST PARK, St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 8 (A.P.)—Four clubs, two talented, a mailman and a 16-year-old student representing seven cities in six states struck their way into the quarter final round of the eighth National public links golf championship at Forest Park today. They were: Karl Kauffmann, the steel mill clerk from Pittsburgh, who has won the title for the past two years and who paced the field with better than perfect golf today; John Hornsby, a railroad clerk who holds the championship of Topeka, Kan.; Gordon Tenney, reigning Kentucky amateur; John Boyd, 21-year-old Philadelphia bank clerk; Wesley Casper, a Louisville mill clerk, who is the reigning Kentucky amateur title holder; Milton Sengert, a mail man from Toledo, and Frank Connolly, a salesman, who recently beat a good field to win the championship of the Detroit municipality links, and Mortimer G. Jaffe, who hails from the village of Hudson and is the only remaining New Yorker in the title quest.

To accomplish their victories, some eliminated favorites, some were extended to extra holes and the others, including the champion, won in a walk. They played 18-hole rounds in the morning and afternoon and will struggle against each other for the right to enter the semifinals in two additional 18-hole rounds tomorrow.

Kauffman, who grows a swarthy mustache with the galaxy side time he wears his clubs, played the best two rounds of golf in the history of the amateur championship course in his victorious march today.

Kauffman Shoots Near Par.

In his first round he shot but one over par in the fifteen holes he was forced to travel to eliminate E. H. Albeck, of Chicago, 8 and 3, while in the afternoon he handed John Conway, of Detroit, who had previously eliminated Henry Fabrizio, the little Italian laborer, of Brooklyn, a 6 and 5 ending with better than par. Trying for a color record, Kauffman played the afternoon round and carded a 70, two under par which equaled his brilliant round in the first day's qualifying play.

Hornsby, who was forced to go to extra holes to win his two matches, scored the highest round of the day, 135, after a 140-round Baltimore flat finger, in the main go of the weekly ring card of the Greenboro Athletic Club. Though Voigt was on the canvas twice, both laid out put up a spectacular slugging exhibition. Benny Lonaki, 138 pounds, of Dover, scored a technical K. O. over Vince Cordell, 138, of Baltimore, in the fourth stanza when a hard right hook sent the Monumental City fighter to the floor for a count of nine. When he arose he was hoarse and the fight was stopped. Dick Cowan, 128, of Cordova, floored Laurence Gunn, 125, of Baltimore, four times to win an easy decision. In the preliminary John Tomlinson, 135, of Dover, hammered out a decision over Kelly Green, 145, of Boston, Md., in four rounds.

Local Muny Netmen Beat Middies, 9-0
Annapolis, Md., Aug. 8.—A picked Public Parks team of Washington defeated the Naval Academy second class team on the local courts, 9 matches to 0. In only two matches were the Washingtonians sent to the third set for victory. Dolley Mitchell was extended by Midshipman Holtzworth, who won the first set, while Herb Shepard and Alan Stubbins had to travel at top speed to defeat the Middies duo, Lucas and Chew, in the doubles.

The summaries:
Considine (W) defeated Robertson, 6-3, 6-2; Mitchell (W) defeated Holtzworth, 6-3, 6-2; Trigg (W) defeated Green, 6-3, 6-2; Stubbins (W) defeated Chew, 6-1, 6-2; Stubbins (W) defeated Holtzworth, 6-3, 6-2.

PLAZA STARS SCORE.
Plaza All Stars defeated the Central All Stars, 5 to 3, yesterday. The winners scored all of their runs in the fourth inning for the margin. The Petworth-Yorkes will be met tomorrow at 3 o'clock on the Plaza diamond.

Connolly won his matches by the narrow margins of 1 up, defeating

Dugan, Voigt Draw In Greensboro Bout

Special to The Washington Post.
Greensboro, Md., Aug. 8.—Jimmy Dugan, 147-pound Crisfield boxer, fought eight rounds to a draw with Oscar Voigt, 140-pound Baltimore flat finger, in the main go of the weekly ring card of the Greenboro Athletic Club. Though Voigt was on the canvas twice, both laid out put up a spectacular slugging exhibition. Benny Lonaki, 138 pounds, of Dover, scored a technical K. Connolly won his matches by the narrow margins of 1 up, defeating Guy McCall, of Buffalo, and Frank Bork, of St. Paul, Minn., amateur champion.

Kauffman will meet Boyd in his quarter final 18-hole round tomorrow, while Hornsby will match Stubbins with Denney. In the lower bracket, Jaffe tackles Casper, while Sengert tangles with Connolly. A second round will be played in the afternoon to determine the finalists, and the championship will be settled over 36 holes Saturday.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 8.—St. Paul Saints, 10, defeated

THE DOUBLE

By EDGAR WALLACE

SYNOPSIS.

Dick Staines, in love with beautiful Mary Dane, a nurse, concludes that the girl has a dangerous double when he mistakes her for a mysterious intruder in Walter Derick's house. The double, he later discovers, is Mary's sister, Mary Brown, who has been committed to an institution. With the sweet confession of Mary, love for him still ringing in his ears, Dick learns that Mary is to marry his intimate friend, Tommy Ward. Bewildered, uncertain still as to Mary's identity, and conduct, Dick sees her again, and is again impressed with her similarity. Dick obtains, by chance, a message intended for Mary, but addressed to Mary Devillers, thanking her for money sent to Dick. The butler, still puzzled, he gets a call from Mary, asking him to admit her to his house at night and to guard her carefully. While waiting for her that night, he sees a mysterious masked figure in the Derick house.

In the dark the face would have been indistinguishable, but there was sufficient light from the street below to show the mask that enveloped not only the face but the head of the stranger and to reveal the awkward cut holes through which two eyes were glaring.

He waited a second and then stepped out.

"I want you!" he said.

He saw a hand snap up, and he dropped like a stone to the inadequate cover of the balcony.

As he did so, something whizzed through his hair. He saw the flash but heard no other sound than the stunning thud of the explosive. The unknown had him at his mercy, did he but realize and had he the courage, for the narrow stone pillars behind which the detective was crouching afforded no vital cover.

But after the first shot the masked man spun round and vanished through the open window. Again Dick's leg was flung across the parapet. Again the memory of Mary Dane called him back.

He went back to his room, took the first flight of stairs at a leap, would have taken the second, but Minna was in his way. The butler he pushed aside dashed down the remaining stairs and flung open the door.

Mr. Derick was standing on the doorstep, his hand at the bell, and Dick in his hurry almost sent him flying down the three steps that led from the sidewalk to the house.

"For the love of heaven what's wrong?"

The detective did not reply. He went to Derick's door and tried it. It was locked.

"Somebody in there?" asked Derick quickly.

The two doors were side by side, only a low balustrade separated the stone platforms that formed the top step.

"Come over here," said Dick, and Derick obeyed with a wondering shake of his head. "Try that door!"

"What is the idea?" asked Derick as he pushed. "You want to get in?"

He searched in his pocket and presently found what he sought.

"No, I don't want to go in." Dick was looking at the broad step. It had been raining and the streets were wet, but the two porches and the houses themselves were on the lee side of the rainstorm, and they were bone dry.

"Do you notice anything?" Derick shook his head.

"What has happened?" he asked. There was a note of petulance in his voice. "I'm getting rather tired of all these mysteries."

"No mystery about it. A masked gentleman shot at me from your balcony upstairs."

"Good God!" And then Derick looked round. Two men were standing on the edge of the pavement, watching curiously. "Who are those fellows?" he asked.

"You needn't bother about those," said Dick sharply. "They're Scotland Yard men."

He beckoned to one of them. "Did you see anything?"

"No, sir, I thought I saw a flash from the balcony."

Derick had turned the key and thrown the door open wide. The hall was in complete darkness, and for this he admitted he was responsible.

"I didn't realize it got dark so soon. Will you come in?"

Dick signaled the men to follow. "These officers will go up with you," he said, and heard Derick's laugh.

"Are you afraid?" he bantered. "Terribly," said the detective. He waited while the search was conducted, and after a time one of the men came out with something black in his hand.

"Here is the mask, sir. It looks as if it was put on a woman's stocking. We found it on the stairs."

"Did you find the gun?"

"No, sir, but we found a silencer. That was in what you call the office room."

Dick examined it casually and slipped it into his pocket. "No sign of any man?"

"None whatever." Dick's smile was not pleasant. "It should have been very much surprised if there was," he said, for the doorman had told him all that he wanted to know.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Derrick followed him into Tommy's room.

"I am almost beginning to feel that this is my house too," he said jocularly. "Well, what do you make of it? More like a cinema film than a piece of real life."

And then, as his eyes fell upon the mask in Dick's hand, he laughed. "You couldn't imagine that could you? What do you say about changing your mind and spending the night in this ghost house of mine?"

"Or may I make an alternative suggestion," said Dick quietly, "that you let my two men stay there? They won't want to sleep. A chair in the drawing room will be all they'll require."

Before he had finished, Derrick was shaking his head. "I don't think so," he said. "No, I'm all for reducing the risks to a minimum. I'm not staying there myself. Tomorrow I'm bringing in a gang of workmen, storing my furniture, and as soon as it is out of the house I'm going to pull it down brick by brick!"

And then he asked a most surprising question. "I wonder if I could see the butler's pantry?"

Dick stared at him. "In Ward's house? I don't see any objection."

He rang for Minna, and that urban man came. "Mr. Derrick wishes to see your pantry."

To his amazement he saw the butler's jaw drop and his face change color.

"My pantry, sir? Certainly. If you don't mind I'll make it just a bit tidy."

"You needn't bother about that," said Derrick, going to follow Minna from the room.

The man turned in the doorway to face him.

"I'm sorry, sir," he said, "but I was his old, dignified servant while I'm in his old, dignified service. I'm afraid I can take such orders only from him. I shall be most happy to show you my pantry, but it would not be creditable to his lordship that my room should be untidy when you inspected it."

He went out of the room and closed the door behind him. Mr. Derrick stared after him.

"That was the last thing I expected," said Dick, secretly amused. Derrick turned on him with a face as black as thunder.

"The old-fashioned servant, eh? I've read about them in books but never met them before! I don't think I want to see that pantry."

He turned on his heel and left the house.

Dick went out to Mr. Minna's room. He found the butler very placid and rather pleased with himself than otherwise.

"What's the idea about that pantry of yours, Minna?" he asked. "Is it part of the general mystery?"

"There's nothing mysterious about my pantry, sir. And then, with a note of anxiety in his voice: "Do you mind telling me if Mr. Derrick made any reference to the fact that he was reluctant to show him the room?"

A sharp retort was on Dick's lips, but he checked the inclination. "Mr. Derrick merely said that he didn't think it necessary now to inspect your room."

"I'm sorry he said that, sir." He offered no explanation for his sorrow, but it was evident to Dick that the man was uneasy.

Minna came in at midnight to ask if there was anything further Dick required, and Dick heard him walk along the passage and the click as he turned the key in his lock.
